DRY S LAUNCH DRIVE AGAINST GOV. AL SMITH

Work to Form Nationwide Bipartisan Committee Favoring Prohibition

OPPOSE WET NOMINEES To Call National Convention of Committee Before Party Conventions

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Copyright, 1927 by Post Pub. Co.
Washington—Sympathizers with the dry side in politics are discussing a nationwide movement to establish a bi-partisan national committee for political action in the approaching presidential campaign.

The plan is to select a dry Democrat and a dry Republican from every state in the union. Church organizations interested in maintaining prohibition are expected to figure largely in the effort which involves the calling of a national convention by the bi-partisan committee. At such a convention of dry delegates from both the Republican and Democratic parties, the idea is to nominate an outstanding dry Democrat. This would take place in advance of the Republican and Democratic national conventions but the purpose of it would be to influence primarily the kind of candidate to be selected by the Democrats. An effort would be made by the drys of the Democratic faith to go into the Democratic convention with the argument that choice of the bi-partisan committee is the logical nominee for the Democrats. Failing to win, the same movement would be kept up independently during the campaign in the hope of getting the southern states particularly to cast their electoral votes for a dry Democrat, even though he might not win the regular Democratic nomination.

AIMED AT SMITH
The movement is aimed at Governor Smith of New York, as well as any other wet Democrat who might be considered and has had its origin on the Pacific coast where the name most discussed for the bi-partisan nomination is William Gibbs McAdoo. Other names mentioned are Senator Thomas Walsh of Montana, and Governor Donahoe of Ohio. The sum and substance of the movement is that the drys are fearful Governor Smith may enter the Democratic national convention with commanding strength and that his own personal popularity might influence the convention to subordinate the wet and dry issue, which to the drys is the paramount question of the day. If a national convention should nominate a wet, they feel this would be a body blow to the cause of prohibition. Therefore, even though they may not succeed in getting the Democrats to nominate a conspicuous dry, they hope to prevent the nomination of a conspicuous wet.

All independent movements in politics have been looked upon as more or less futile in the past generation because they have not yet penetrated the mind of the average voter. Funds also have been lacking to go on with the tremendous job of organization necessary to comply with state laws to get on ballots. But the drys have both the organization and the money. Entirely apart from the effect that the movement might have on the choice of a Democratic nominee for the presidency, the drys would hope to prove that the same thing must be done in the future if the Republican party followed the council of Nicholas Murray Butler and others who think the wet cause should be championed by the Republican party.

Milwaukee—(P)—Mrs. Vianna Braman, Superior, was elected state president of the P. E. O. Sisterhood at the close of the annual convention Thursday.

Other officers elected are: Mrs. Lida
E. Brown, Manitowish, vice president; Mrs. Grace Barrett, Milwaukee, organizer; Miss Fay Jackson, Fond du Lac, recording secretary; Mrs. Anna

Milwaukee, treasurer.

Four new chapters were granted charters—Madison, River Falls, and two in Milwaukee.

NEW GOLF CHAMP WILL BE CROWNED IN WEST

Brookmore, Colo.—(P)—A new trans-Mississippi golf champion will be crowned here Saturday. Eddie Held of St. Louis, was dethroned Wednesday in the second round of the championship fight when James Ward of Kansas City, presented the gallery with a remarkable exhibition on the home green to defeat the former champion one up. Held's elimination from the titular fight leaves his conqueror the favorite among the remaining eight contestants.

COMMUNIST EXECUTIONS ARE EXPECTED IN CHINA

London—(P)—Communist executions are looked for at Ningpo, in the Chinese province of Chekiang, says a Reuters dispatch from that place. The nationalist General Xuehu, commanding the Shanghai area, is reported to have arrived at Ningpo with a bodyguard of 200 men and 12 executioners, the understanding being that he intends to spend the weekend dealing with local communists.

An intensive anti-British boycott is in progress at Ningpo, the dispatch adds, red or semi-red unionism being strong. Chinese are said to have been forbidden to handle British cargoes.
Seven days ago it was reported that feeling was running high in the port where the anti-British movement is unpopular among the merchants.

BYRD EXPECTS PARIS HOP OFF EARLY FRIDAY

Weather Conditions Clearing Up and Plane Is Ready to Make Start

Roosevelt Field, New York—(P)—
The trimmotored monoplane America will be taken from its hangar Thursday night and drawn to the top of the runway preparatory to a hop off for France at 4 o'clock Friday morning.

"There is a general clearing up in the weather that has delayed the flight so far," Commander Richard E.
Byrd told newspaper men Thursday.
"and while there is no certainty just now of a take off in the morning, we are going to get all ready, and if we can't leave tomorrow, we will probably be able to go the next day."

America will be taken to the runway tonight in preparation for the hop at four in the morning if the weather man will let us go.

Commander Byrd's optimism, combined with a report from the weather bureau in New York that fog between here and Newfoundland was clearing up and the information that Porter Adams, president of the National Aeronautical association, was on his way from Washington to seal the barograph, led to a general feeling at the flying field that the long delay was almost at an end.

VALERA AND DEPUTIES BARRED FROM CHAMBER

Dublin, Ireland—(P)—Eamon De Valera and the other deputies elected to the Fianna Fail ticket who refused to take the oath of allegiance to the king at the opening of the new Daily Eireann Thursday, were refused admission to the chamber. The Dail began its sitting without them.

"Mr. De Valera and his deputies marched to Leinster house where the Dail sits, at 2:30 Thursday afternoon.
They were admitted to the house, on showing their invitations and were conducted to one of the committee rooms. The clerk and deputy clerk of the Dail entered the room to hear the Fianna Fail members take the oath of allegiance, but the latter refused.
Thereupon they were refused admission to the Dail chamber."

William T. Cosgrave was re-elected president of the Free State executive council by the new Dail Eireann at its first session.

TWO COPS AND THIEF KILLED IN GUN FIGHT

Chicago—(P)—Darkness mantled a triple slaying early Thursday in a northside alley, with no witnesses left to tell what happened except a morning girl who fled in horror before the roar of the last revolver shot had died away. Two policemen shot it out with an automobile thief and the three were killed.

The policemen dead are Sergeant
Thomas Kehoe, 32, and Officer James Farley, 32. The man they killed was identified as Lester, who in 1925 was sentenced to the Pontiac reformatory on a robbery charge. Bodies of the policemen were found on a lawn on North Rockwell-st.

Emotionalism In Church Causes Deacons To Quit

New York—(P)—Objecting to a tendency to emotionalism in church, with resulting fainting and shouting, five deacons of Calvary Baptist church have resigned, declaring themselves
"scholarly at variance" with the Rev.
Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor. Support on certain fundamental points of doctrine and church conduct.

The five deacons four weeks ago joined in a public vote of confidence in Dr. Straton as their pastor. "We are particularly concerned," the statement of the resigning deacons said,
"by the recurrence in connection with certain services in this church of manifestations of a nature commonly associated with pentecostalism."

Supplementing the statement, Stephen A. Bradford, one of the resigning deacons, explained that pen-

LAW STUDENTS IN STATE MAY DODGE EXAMS

Assembly Engrosses Bill to Put Other Schools on Par
With U. of W.

Madison—(P)—Law school graduates from institutions having the same standards as the University of Wisconsin would be admitted to the state bar upon presentation of diplomas, under the provisions of a bill ordered engrossed by the state assembly Thursday.

Vote on the measure was 76 to 6.
The action came after a long debate and the introduction of numerous amendments which were in turn rejected with the exception of one. The bill, introduced by the committee on judiciary, as amended allows the prospective lawyers to be admitted to the bar after taking three years of law school work. High school training alone would be required for admission to the law schools.

Speaking against the original provision which would have required two years of university training, Assemblyman Krause declared that "two years of whole playing at the university wouldn't make better lawyers." The amendment eliminating this requirement was adopted.

ACT ON SALARY MEASURE
The lower house also concurred with the senate in a joint resolution referring to the people the question of amending the constitution to strike out the provisions on pay of legislators. The vote was 75 to 8. A joint resolution was introduced by Assemblyman Reis calling for an investigation of the feasibility of a state retirement fund for all state employees with the exception of teachers.

Assemblyman Ingalls introduced a joint resolution asking for the appointment of an ethics committee to investigate railroad grade crossings in the state with the view of eliminating hazards. Reconsideration of the common school tax equalization bill passed last night, was moved.

INVITE LOWDEN

A resolution inviting Frank O. Low-den, former governor of Illinois, to speak before the Wisconsin legislature on farm relief, was adopted by the state senate Thursday.

The favorable action came after two previous attempts to secure the memor's passage. Senators opposing the resolution contended that such an invitation would be interpreted as a "political move" in view of recent statements by supporters of the Farmer-Republican concerning a possible presidential campaign. The resolution was introduced by Senator Schumann who, urging its passage, declared that Mr.
Lowden was an authority on agricultural problems and could bring the message of the farmer to the legislature.

The Schumann resolution, inviting former Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois to speak before a joint session of the Wisconsin legislature was laid over for the second time Wednesday night after a half hour debate. A showing their invitations and were conducted to one of the committee

Fianna Fail members take the oath of allegiance, but the latter refused.
Thereupon they were refused admission to the Dail chamber."

WORTH ATTENDS TRAFFIC HEARING IN ST. PAUL

Roy G. Worth, traffic manager of the chamber of commerce, is in St.
Paul, representing Appleton at the Western Class state investigation which opened Wednesday. Several other neighboring cities also are represented. Mr. Worth carried a full truck of exhibits which he has prepared in the last few months to show the proposed rate raise of Western Trunk line carriers is unfair to Appleton and Wisconsin shippers and recipients. The hearing at St. Paul is expected to last about two weeks.

Expect Heavier Response To Appeal For Flowers

There won't be many flowers for distribution to patients in St. Elizabeth hospital and Riverside sanitarium next Saturday morning unless there is a larger response to the appeal that is being made in The Post-Crescent. Up to Thursday morning there were only about a half dozen offers of flowers. Of course there still is plenty of time to get in your calls to the office of the Post-Crescent. All that is necessary is to call 543 and tell the telephone operator that you will have flowers for the Flower Cars on Saturday morning. The telephone operator will take your name and address and on Saturday morning one of the Flower cars will call at your home.

It is estimated that at least 100 bunches of flowers will be necessary

Farmer Shoots Accused Youth As Trial Begins

Duncan, Okla.—(P)—Surrounded by numerous gifts from friends, Arch Gibbreath, 42-year-old farmer, was shot and killed B. F. Cox in district court here Wednesday when the youth went on trial for an alleged criminal assault on the farmer's daughter.

With upwards of sixty spectators in the room, the judge had just completed the preliminary legal procedure and started questioning of prospective jurors when Gibbreath rose and fired three times at Cox.

Cox, whose defense was to have been insanity and who had been moun-taining incoherently, fell at the counsel table where he died. All three bullets took effect in his back. He apparently died instantly.

A jailer seized Gibbreath's wrist and he dropped the pistol. The farmer was rushed from the room to a cell.
Gibbreath regained his composure quickly.

"I haven't had any rest to amount to anything for two or three weeks, just thinking of it," he said. "Now
I've got it off my mind and my head is eased. I did 'st get 'em 'rooted'
because I could not get at 'em."

The farmer scarcely had been locked up when numerous offers of bond
just thinking of it," he said. "Now
I've got it off my mind and my head is eased. I did 'st get 'em 'rooted'
because I could not get at 'em."

THREE KILLED IN AUTOMOBILE-TRAIN CRASH AT LA CROSSE

La Crosse—(P)—Three persons were almost instantly killed and a fourth is dying in a local hospital, as the results on an accident in which a fast mail train of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul crashed into the automobile in which the four were riding at a crossing five minutes out of the La Crosse station at 10:15
Thursday morning.

The dead: George Luth, 65; George
Luth, 40 grandson; William Murphy, 67, all of this city. The injured Clara Luth, daughter of the senior Luth, not expected to recover.

Bodies of three were found at distances of from 50 to 125 feet from the crossing. The woman's body was carried along on the locomotive pilot the length of the train before it came to a stop.

DEATHS THAN YEAR AGO

Washington, D. C.—(P)—Charles A.
Lindbergh landed at Bolling field at 11:27 Thursday morning, having flown from Dayton, Ohio, in an army airplane. The New York to Paris flier was met by officials of the war, navy and commerce departments, who will confer with him on his future plans and obtain his views on the development of aviation abroad.

MORE BIRTHS AND MORE DEATHS THAN YEAR AGO

There were 17 more births and 11 more deaths reported to the city health department this May than in the same month last year, according to the monthly report of Dr. F. P. Delaury, city physician and health officer.
A total of 61 births were reported last month as compared with 44 in the same month last year. There were 42 deaths in May, 1927, as against 31 in May, 1926. Twenty-six marriages took place during the past month.

The city physician made five calls at the city poor home and investigated cases of contagious disease.
Other calls were made by the city physician as follows: St. Elizabeth hospital, 10; office of the poor department, 3; office of street department, 3; police station, 1; on poor not city charges, 3; street department employees homes, 1.

Janeville—(P)—J. E. Kennedy, Milwaukee, deputy state fire marshal, and Fred Gillman, Evansville police chief, were among four people cut and bruised in an automobile collision on Tuesday night. The crash occurred on Tuesday night, 29, 17 miles east of here, on Wednesday night. Others hurt were:
Zola Miller, Evansville and Mrs. Kennedy. The injured were taken to their homes. Miller, Chief Gillman and two other delegates were returning from the Madison convention at Racine, while Kennedy was driving to Delavan

TWO AVIATORS MISSING WHEN PLANE SINKS

Pilot of Machine Which Crashed into Sea During Fog Swims to Shore

San Diego, Calif.—(P)—Belief that Lieut. Commander William S. Hactor, operations officer of the naval air station here, may have survived the sinking of a naval torpedo plane off La Guna beach Tuesday night, kept armies and marines busy searching for him in the waters near here Thursday.

An inquiry into the cause of the accident was ordered after Lieut. Thomas Fisher, pilot of the plane, assumed responsibility for it. Lieutenant Fisher was found stumbling along the beach after he had made a five mile swim to shore when the plane went down.

ATTORNEYS OPPOSE FORCING DEFENDANT TO BECOME WITNESS

Ex-Governor McGovern and Judge Werner Speak Again
Proposal at Green Bay

Green Bay—(P)—Proposals to force a defendant to take the witness stand and submit to adverse examination, and to permit the court to comment on the weight and credibility of the evidence received little support of the Wisconsin Bar association in a round table discussion of those subjects at the second day session of their convention here Thursday.

No speaker championed putting the defendant on the stand, and Frank H.
Hoyt, Milwaukee attorney, was the only lawyer to favor comments by the court on the credibility of the evidence.

Francis E. McGovern, former governor of Wisconsin declared that compelling the defendant to take the witness stand against his will would be "a feature, different from the physical torture of the medieval attorney, and one of our most precious institutions, the jury system. It would have hate and revenge in its heart," and reminded his hearers of the rule as to presumption of innocence.

DE AUTREMENT TWINS TO CONFESS, OFFICER SAYS

Medford, Ore.—(P)—District Attorney Newton W. Chaney announced Thursday that Ray and Roy de Autremont, said they will confess to the crime with which they are charged.
They were arrested at Stuebenville, Ohio.

According to Chaney, they will claim in their confession that Hugh de Autremont, convicted Tuesday of the killing of C. O. Johnson, Southern Pacific brakeman and who received a life sentence, killed all three trainmen slain in the holdup of a Southern Pacific train in the Siskiyou mountains of Oregon, in October 1923.

JUDICIAL BUSINESS AT STANDSTILL IN COUNTY

Court activities at the courthouse were at a standstill Thursday because all three judges are in attendance at the state bar meeting in Green Bay.

Judge Theodore Berg who left Thursday morning is expected to return Thursday night. Judge Edgar V.
Werner who left Wednesday will attend to a number of matters for Judge Henry Grass of Green Bay before returning to his home at Appleton.

Judge Fred V. Heimemann took a number of Appleton lawyers to the convention in his yacht "Idler," and is expected to return sometime Friday.

Practically all lawyers of Appleton will attend some of the sessions.

REEDSBURG MAN HEADS BANKERS OF WISCONSIN

Madison—(P)—Norman T. Gill of Reedsburg, was elected president of the Wisconsin Bankers' association at a session of the annual convention
Thursday at the Hotel LaSalle. Mil-

An executive committee was appointed to select a secretary. Wall G.
Cooperman is the present secretary and it was thought he would be re-elected.

POLICE UNABLE TO FIND TRACE OF GARAGE THIEVES

No trace has been found by police of the thieves who forced their way

by prying open a window of the gar-

Cutter And Rum Runner Playing Hide And Seek

San Francisco, Calif.—(P)—A game of hide and seek on the high seas was in progress 600 miles off the coast Thursday between the United States coast guard cutter Cahokia and the famous old steamer Malahat, believed by federal authorities to be trying to turn over to American bootleggers some thousand odd cases of liquor.

The Malahat, formerly the Mahone, on which Jack London sailed when he gathered material for "The Sea Wolf," but which since has reputedly become a rum runner, left Tahiti in the South sea, several weeks ago for British Columbia. Her cargo was reported to be between 1,000 and 2,000 cases of liquor.

The Malahat carried her title of "ghost ship" because of the many times she has shipped, phantom-like, past coast guard patrols, and never

PRISONERS HELD IN MINE MUST DEPEND ON OATS FOR FOOD

Lausling, Kans.—(P)—Oats, issued as rations for mules, Thursday was the only food known to be available to 328 convicts and their 14 captive guards barricaded in the prison coal mine here since 1 o'clock Tuesday morning.

As the mineuters passed their forty-fifth hour under ground there was nothing to indicate they wished to withdraw their ultimatum "no cigars—no coal."

Prison authorities said the noon meal sent down the 220 foot shaft shortly before the strikers blew the case would have been exhausted Wednesday night at the latest. This would leave only 30 bushels of oats intended for the mules.

Warden R. H. Hudspeth declared
Thursday that any negotiations would have to be started by the convicts, as he was willing to allow the hunger cure to continue.

SENATE TAKES OFF ALL PENALTIES FOR HAVING 2.75 BEER

Upper House Wants "Poor Men" to Have Alcoholic Beverage

Madison—The assembly, by a big margin, passed the bill of Assemblyman Thomas Duncan of Milwaukee, which would revoke all penalties under the dry laws as far as 2.75 per cent beer and wine is concerned. The senate Wednesday, by a vote of 16 to 15, refused to kill the bill, but its opponents won an immediate recess to prevent its advancement before further consideration.

The bill is one of the shortest yet measures over to make its appearance in Wisconsin. It does not change the prohibition law except to provide that the penalties against liquor law violators could not be applied where beer or any other beverage that contained 2.75 per cent of alcohol or less was concerned. Its supporters contend that, with the state in effect legalizing 2.75 per cent beer, even the federal department would be inclined to devote its attention to liquors of greater alcoholic content.

SAVES RICH AREN'T INTERESTED
"If the senators are as consistent in voting as they are in drinking they will pass this bill," Senator Walter Polakowski, Milwaukee, declared. He contended that the rich are not interested in modifying the dry laws because their well stocked cellars supply their needs in spite of the law.

Senator Howard Teasdale, Sparta, who led the fight against the bill, declared that he had been told that the beer is being freely sold in all sections of Milwaukee and that if this is a fact then he can see no hardship for the poor beer drinkers now.

Senator William Markham, Horicon, declared that the prohibition amendment was put over on the claim that it would result in closing prisons and insane asylums. Instead, he said, prisons and asylums are "crowded with the victims of poison substitutes for beer they formerly consumed."

CITES TEASDALE'S DISTRICT
Senator Bernard Gettelman, Milwaukee, pointed out the overwhelming majority the voters rolled up for beer in the state-wide referendum and, in particular, the majority rolled up for beer in Senator Teasdale's district.

Senator Walter S. Goodland, Racine, explained his vote against the bill by saying that he would favor the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the dry laws because he believed that prohibition was a failure but that he was pledged to observe the constitution and the laws as long as they are on the statute books.

WING'S LAVISH BOAT DOCKS IN RIVER HERE

Paper Manufacturer Buys Splendid Vessel for Cruising on Lakes

What is regarded as the finest yacht in this district was docked Tuesday afternoon near the swing bridge at the government dock.

The craft is the property of William C. Wing, president of the Fox River Paper company, who recently purchased it from the Great Lakes Boat company, Chicago, from where it arrived under the command of Captain William Smith of Neenah.

The yacht will remain in its present dock until the latter part of the week when it will be taken to Lake Winnebago for the summer.

The boat is 54 feet long and 10 feet wide. It has a comfortable capacity of 10 persons and is outfitted with three cabins.

Two Sterling engines of 250 horsepower supply the motive power and the craft is built entirely of mahogany. It has a rated speed of 25 miles an hour.

Since the boat has been docked here it has attracted many persons and has elicited wide admiration.

Mr. Wing has named the yacht the "Nanette."

POSTOFFICE EMPLOYEES TO HOLD BOAT EXCURSION

Members of the Appleton postoffice association and their friends will hold a boat excursion to Oshkosh Sunday.

The boat will leave the government dock at 8 o'clock in the morning and will return at night. Arthur Kahler, chairman of the entertainment committee is in charge.

EXPECT LARGE CROWD AT MONTHLY STOCK FAIR

A large number of farmers are expected to attend the monthly stock fair at the Stock Fair grounds next Saturday. This is the time of the year when farmers usually take their young pigs to the markets to be sold and wholesale buyers from all parts of the state and from northern Illinois attend the fair to get their summer stocks. The last two monthly fairs were attended by increasingly large numbers of farmers from all parts of the county and it is expected that a record number will be in the city next Saturday.

JUDICIAL SYSTEM NEEDS REVISION

Lawyers Told Legislatures Are to Blame for Present Muddled Condition

Green Bay—(CP)—"The judicial system is on trial before the American public and has been on trial for at least the last 20 years," declared W. E. Fisher, Stevens Point attorney in address before the annual convention of the Wisconsin Bar association here Thursday. The lamentable thing about it, he said, is that the legislative department of the government is really to blame for the defects that exist today.

"If we were discussing this subject 75 years ago, we could justly assign the blame to the judicial branch of the government, but since that time, the responsibility for court procedure has been taken over by the legislative branch."

"During the past twenty years, there has been constant demand for changes in the judicial branch of the government and repeated attempts to get the legislative branch to assist in the undertaking. I do not believe the legislative department of the government is unwilling to assist, but it is unformed and somewhat prejudiced. It must be admitted that these prejudices are often being nursed even by members of our own profession."

"If we had sought a solution of this problem 50 years ago, it would have been more difficult than it seems today. At that time procedure as established by the courts had been tried and found wanting."

3 SYSTEMS IN VOGUE

"During the past 50 years three methods of procedure have been working simultaneously. Present day results demonstrate which is preferable. We have today in some jurisdictions the common law system in a modified form. In other jurisdictions is the civil law system and in some a third system, modified and to some extent simplified. In England is the Rules committee system established with the cooperation of Parliament by its delegation of authority and non-interference therewith."

"We are therefore in a position today to compare the merits and demerits of the three systems. In this state there are in my opinion two ways of creating a rules committee, one by amendment of the constitution, or second, by an act of the legislature. Such a committee in my opinion should be modeled after the rules committee of England. It should include among its members in addition to judges of the courts of record, a number of lawyers in active practice."

"By a comparative study of the general systems in active operation in England and America today, a committee of experts should be able to borrow the better parts of each system, and mold them into a simple, workable, flexible system, easily revised and further simplified, that would be a considerable improvement over our code."

BANKERS HEAR ASSEMBLY ADOPT NEXT TAXING LAW

Madison—Members of the American Banking association, in convention here Wednesday, attended the senate session long enough to hear the legislature vote in favor of the bank income tax bill, which provides that the income of banks be taxed and not the capital stock as is now the law.

The bill was introduced by Assemblyman Lawson, Walworth banker, for the interim committee on administration and taxation. The vote was 25-3 for concurrence. The bill now goes to the governor.

The state banking association president, Knute Anderson, Eau Claire, stressed the importance of this bill to the banking profession in his address here Wednesday.

The state senate also engrossed a bill by Senator Severson providing for the improvement of the state owned radio service station at Stevens Point. The bill calls for an appropriation of $12,000 and in placing the whole supervision under the state department of markets.

My answer slip reads: No. 9. South (Dealer) should bid one Spade.

No. 10. South one Heart: West should bid one Spade.

No. 11. South one Club, West pass; North should bid one No Trump.

No. 12. After three passes; East should pass.

My reasons in support of these declarations are:

No. 9. While it is not conventional to bid a four-card Ace-King suit without a quick trick (Ace or King-Queen) on the side, it is conventional to bid a four-card Ace-King suit with only a King on the side.

No. 10. The hand has not sufficient strength for an informative, double and therefore should bid one in its strong Spade suit.

No. 11. A close choice between one Spade and one No Trump; but with a partner bidding the singleton suit and probably holding some strength on the side, and with four cards in North's Heart suit. No Trump seems to be the more promising declaration although a bid of one. Spade would not deserve serious criticism.

No. 12. While the above hand is strong enough for an initial bid (i. e., by Dealer or Second Hand), it is not strong enough for an original bid by Fourth Hand.

BRINGS PRISONER FROM GEORGIA TO FACE CHARGE HERE

Prim Brings Back Man Wanted in Case of Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses

William F. Krull was returned to Appleton Wednesday afternoon from Atlanta, Ga., by Chief of Police George T. Prim to answer a charge of obtaining money through false pretenses in a case that started over two years ago. Krull was arrested on a warrant sworn out by T. L. Held, manager of the Hotel Appleton, to whom he is said to have tendered a worthless sight draft for $200.

Requisition papers for his return to Appleton were issued last December in a hearing held in Georgia after the case had been turned over to John A. Lousdorf, district attorney. Krull was then under arrest in Georgia and rather than return to Appleton he declared he was willing to make a settlement in the case.

DOESN'T KEEP PROMISE

He was released on bail but failed to carry through the agreement to make the settlement with Held. It was decided last week by Chief Prim to take action after a telegram was received by the chief from the solicitor-general of Georgia that the requisition papers were still in force. Chief Prim left last Thursday night for Atlanta and had no difficulty in apprehending Krull who was surrendered to the Appleton official by Krull's lawyer in Georgia.

With the return of Krull to Appleton, Mr. Held was notified and a conference between Krull and the manager is to be arranged. There is a possibility a settlement between the two may be made.

Krull's family is living in Louisville, Ky.

The worthless draft he tendered Held was for a six month bill he and his family incurred while staying at the hotel.

CHANGES IN FACULTY AT NORTHLAND COLLEGE

Ashland—(P)—Resignation of three Northland college faculty members, brought about appointment of several new members and several shifts in the duties of others.

Prof. C. L. Atkins, for three years head of the English department and one of the most popular members of the faculty, has resigned to re-enter the pastorate. Under his guidance debating and dramatics have become major student activities. He has served the Washburn Congregational church as pastor during his connection with Northland college.

Mrs. Clyde Clapper, dean of women and teacher of French and Spanish for three years, resigned to join her husband in Minneapolis, Minn., where he will be principal of the high school.

Rev. C. W. Warren, who has combined the courses in religious education with the pastorate of the local Congregational church, will give full time to his new field at Land O' Lake.

New members of the faculty will be Albin C. Bro. Marguerite Harmon Bro. and Leonard C. Ullmann. No successor to Mrs. Clapper has been named. Mr. Bro will take over part of Mr. Atkins' work and will relieve Prof. E. E. Spieser of some of the courses in education so that he can take Mr. Warren's courses in Biblical literature. Mrs. Bro. will be available for field work in behalf of the college. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bro are Northland alumni and have been teaching in a boys' school in China until last year when they spent their furlough by enrolling in the Chicago Theological seminary.

Mr. Ullmann, who is a graduate of the Stevens Point normal and has been coach at Algoma for three years, will be assistant coach in football and basketball.

"Lindy" Inherited His Interest In Mechanics

Superior—(P)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's interest in mechanics may be inherited, in part at least, from his grandfather, Dr. C. H. Land, for many years a leading dentist of Detroit, who, Doctor John Clark, dentist of this city, recalls, could do more with three instruments than many dentists could with a whole kitful.

Dr. Clark was a student in Dr. Land's office in 1889 and today revealed the ingenuity of Lindbergh's grandparent in his chosen profession. Dr. Land was the father of Mrs. Lindbergh. He was a descendant of one of the founders of Hamilton, Ontario, but spent his boyhood days in New York, later studying dentistry in Brantford, Ont., and beginning his practice in Detroit.

Dr. Clark was a student under Dr. Land before coming to Superior early in the '20s. It was in his grandfather's dental laboratory that "Lindy" as a youth began tinkering with tools.

"Dr. Land was one of the pioneers in porcelain work and it was due largely to him that his process was brought to such perfection and it could be used by the entire profession," Dr. Clark said. "It was my pleasure to watch daily his ingenuity and practical way of doing things. When I came to the Head of Lakes to begin practicing, Dr. Land sent me a complete outfit consisting of gas furnace and accessories to practice this wonderful method of building broken teeth to a natural perfection and usefulness. At that time the process was something new in this part of the country."

"I still have the old furnace as a relic but it is now out of useful commission because of the advancement in the electrical field, which has replaced the cumbersome method of fusing by Bronson flame. But Dr. Land's technique has not been improved upon to any great extent, if any."

"When a condition arose that required a certain form of instrument to accomplish the work, Dr. Land set right to it and made that instrument. He could do more with two or three instruments than many other persons could do with an elaborate outfit. Dr. Land was a quiet man, not blustery. He was rather of the nervous type but was easy in his methods."

The R. J. Wilson Construction company will start excavating for a 20,000 foot sanitary sewer at Combined Locks this week. Excavating machinery has been shipped to the village and a crew of workmen were busy Monday preparing the machines for use later in the week. The contract was awarded to the local company recently on a bid of approximately $17,000. The project will probably be completed in three months.

A special permit was granted village by the state board of health to dump sewage into the Fox river for two years until the Fox river valley cities formulate a plan for a joint sewage disposal system which has been proposed. The health department has warned the valley cities unless they form some plan for this kind of system, an order will be issued restricting the cities from dumping into the river. Each city will thus be forced to build its own plant. To build one large plant and send the sewage from all the cities to it through a main feed line would be less expensive than separate plants, it is thought.

NEW SETTLING BASIN STARTS OPERATION AT CITY WATER PLANT

Holds Million Gallons and Was Constructed at Cost of $35,000

One million gallons of water is the capacity of the new settling basin recently completed at the water department plant on W. Water-st which was put into operation Tuesday afternoon. The pool was built several hundred feet east of the plant proper by the C. R. Meyer and Sons Construction company of Oshkosh at an approximate cost of $35,000.

This new basin will increase the capacity of the water department in that more of the sediment will be removed from the water in the settling process thus decreasing the amount of sediment to be taken from the water in later processes. The water is allowed to pass slowly through the new basin for six hours and the heavy sediment gradually settles to the bottom of the tank. It is then drawn off, and passed through the filters.

The new basin is 120 feet long, 50 feet wide and 15 feet deep. Inside the basin is divided into two compartments with an opening at the south

RAILROAD BAND TO PLAY AT LEGION CONVENTION

Marinette—(P)—Musical programs for the state American Legion convention here August 18-20 are being developed by the committee in charge. The band has played in several midwest cities, at state and interstate fairs and has given radio concerts.

and so that the water can pass from one compartment to another. The water enters the east compartment at the north end and moves slowly to the south end where it is turned by the curved wall of the pool into the west section. It then moves north to the north end of the west section where it is skimmed by an overflow and drawn back to the plant to be filtered.

The settling basin is some distance from the plant proper and in the space between, the municipal swimming pool is located. It is very likely, however, according to A. J. Hall, plant superintendent, that in future years, the swimming pool will have to be abandoned to make room for more settling basins, as the city grows and the need for more water increases.

SPORTSMEN PROTEST PERMIT TO ERECT DAM NEAR KESHENA

Adopt Resolution in Oshkosh Meeting Urging Another Hearing

A resolution asking the federal water power commission to withhold a permit for the development of water power on the Wolf river near the Keshena Indian reservation, was adopted at a meeting of representatives of organizations opposing the project at Oshkosh Wednesday night. The meeting was sponsored by the Fox River Valley Isaak Walton League and was attended by between 50 and 60 people.

Organizations represented at the meeting were the Isaak Walton League, League of Women Voters Federation of Women Clubs, Indian Defense association, Winnebago County Historical and Archeological society, Ministerial association, Congressman Florian J. Lampert of the Sixth congressional district was present and Samuel Sigman, secretary to Congressman George J. Schneider of the Ninth district, attended. Other Appleton men who attended the meeting were Richard Sykes, Richard Meyer, Mark Catlin and Joseph Schultz.

A permit to build the dam was granted last year to the Wisconsin Power and Light company but recently the power commission revoked the permit and returned it to the status of an application pending. The resolution adopted by the gathering at Oshkosh requests the power commission not to grant another permit until the opposition has a chance to be heard.

Mr. Catlin deprecated the meeting of water power on the Wolf river and declared that it would mean the destruction of the finest natural beauty spot in the state. He said that he was representing the outdoor sport lovers, hunters and fishermen and asked members at the meeting to take immediate steps to bring their objections before the power commission.

Samuel Sigman told of Congressman Schneider's views on the power development and read his recent telegram to the power commission in which he definitely announced his opposition to the power development at this time. Mr. Sigman urged that the meeting request all Wisconsin congressmen to cooperate in asking the federal commission to grant the objectors a hearing. Mr. Sigman stated that the Indians were the sole owners of the reservation and their rights should be respected first of all. He said they objected to the power development.

Congressman Lampert told the meeting that the secretary of the power commission had notified him that the opposition would be granted a hearing. He announced himself as being opposed to the development and said he would do all in his power to prevent the granting of the license.

The meeting elected Mark Catlin to prepare a brief in which the views of the opposition would be set forth. This brief will be presented to the commission at the hearing, which Congressman Lampert suggested, should take place early this fall after congress reconvenes.

A copy of the resolution as adopted by the meeting is to be presented to all civic organizations throughout the valley with the request that they adopt it and send it to the power commission to indicate the stand the people of the state are taking on the matter. Following is the resolution:

WHEREAS, Citizens of Wisconsin at a meeting held in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, June 22, 1927, to consider the threatened damming of the Wolf river on the Menominee Indian Reservation at which a representative gathering of citizens of the Fox River Valley was present; and

WHEREAS, The issuance of such license or permit is about to be made; and

WHEREAS, those present desiring to preserve the natural beauties of the Reservation, the rights of the Menominee Indians and the rights of the people of the state of Wisconsin; and

WHEREAS, The Indians themselves are opposed to this development of power and were not consulted, and the people of the state are overwhelmingly opposed to it.

Therefore, the people assembled at this meeting being opposed to the granting of this permit or license and being desirous of providing for the opposition to be heard before the Federal Power Commission; it is requested that a date for a hearing be set and it is urged that all civic organizations take similar action, by resolution or otherwise, in bringing the wishes of the people of the state of Wisconsin to the attention of the Federal Power Commission; and it is hereby hoped that the granting of this permit be averted.

Be it further resolved, That the Indians be given an opportunity to be heard on this project and that the wishes of the tribe as heretofore expressed in council be respected.

HAND - WAVE SETS MILL GOING

Aladdin had to rub his lamp to work his wonders; Judge Elbert H. Gary, head of the U. S. Steel Corporation, merely waves his hand. This photo, taken in his New York office, shows Gary setting in operation a great new electrified steel plant at Homestead, near Pittsburgh, Pa.—400 miles away. Within the glass sphere was "Knowles grid-glow relay tube," an extremely sensitive electrical device. Through the relay tube, the wave of Gary's hand actuated electrical impulses which were transmitted by telegraph line and radio to Homestead. There the delicate "hook-up" threw a switch and started a 6,000-kilowatt, 700-volt motor. This motor, in turn, set huge rolling mills machinery at the steel plant in motion.

CHIROPRACTORS OF DISTRICT REELECT GREEN BAY MAN

Two Day Conference Here
Will Be Closed Friday Afternoon

Dr. Patrick Murphy of Green Bay was reelected president of the Northwestern Wisconsin District of the Association of Chiropractors at the Thursday morning session of the annual convention at the Conway hotel. The conference was to be concluded Thursday afternoon after a two day meeting. All other officers will serve for another year.

"Ninety-five per cent of the diseases to which man is heir could be avoided by a periodic inspection of the human spine," Dr. J. A. Pannock of Appleton said in an address on The Development of the Science of Chiropractic. He traced its history from the accidental discovery by one man, Dr. D. D. Palmer in 1895 through its development by his son Dr. B. J. Palmer. Tribute to these two men was paid by the speaker.

There are approximately 30,000 practitioners and several millions of people accepting this twentieth century drugless method for health, he continued. "Many people do not know the value of chiropractic as a preventative measure," he believed. The periodic inspection of the spine would keep the body and its organs functioning properly thus adding ten or 20 years to the average span of life, Dr. Pannock asserted.

Dr. Fred Herbert of Neenah, spoke on Spinalgia and its Value to the Chiropractic Profession. He showed how the detection of malformed spines was possible with the use of the X-ray.

Delegates at the convention had

FOR BETTER GOVERNMENT

One of the most remarkable votes ever taken in the legislature of Wisconsin was that in the senate by which the Titus bill for reorganizing the whole administrative system of state government was passed. Notwithstanding this measure consolidates 78 departments into 28 and is in this respect a highly important political proposal, it was approved by the senate unanimously. Not a single vote was cast against it. It seeks to put into effect a reform which Senator Titus has been advocating for a number of years, and which he made a vain effort to have enacted at the last legislature.

Because the bill abolishes outright a large number of offices and jobs that are purely political sinecures it will at least have the opposition of these officeholders and their friends, and up to date they have been sufficiently strong in Madison politics to prevent action. This influence is stronger in the house than it is in the senate and the opposition there will be considerable. Whether it can muster sufficient strength to defeat the bill after its impressive approval by the senate is a question.

It was the theory of the Blaine regime that this top-heavy administrative machine, with an army of useless officeholders, was essential to its political existence. It created an elaborate organization for keeping politicians in power and preserving a continuity of their hold on the government. It constituted a heavy drain on state finances, involving directly and indirectly several millions of dollars annually. It is to get rid of this senseless and costly overhead that the reorganization and consolidation bill was conceived. It abolishes outright 12 departments, including oil inspector, state humane agent, land settlement board and other minor departments. Thirty-two departments are abolished but their work is retained. Three new departments are created, into which a large number of minor activities are concentrated, together with a single budget commissioner to handle state finances.

If the people of Wisconsin want financial reform at Madison, economy and the possibility of decreased taxes for state purposes, they will bring pressure on the assembly to pass this bill. It is one of the most important measures for political reform that has been before the legislature in a generation. No reasons whatever can be assigned for opposing it except those which seek to make government a tool of politics. It will give the state cheaper, better and more efficient service than it has ever had before. The real character of the assembly as a legislative body will be determined by its attitude towards this measure.

LIFE INSURANCE

The results of the operations of the life insurance companies of the country for 1926, as set forth in the complete figures just made available, show an increase of ten per cent over the previous year and thus mark another step in the popularization of this means of protecting one's dependants in the event of premature demise or accidental incapacitation. According to the records of 297 old-line legal reserve life insurance companies for every $100 of assets held for the protection of policy holders at the close of 1925, there was about $119 at the close of 1926 and for every $1,000 policy that was written in 1925 there was a $1,100 policy written in 1926.

The extraordinary growth of the life insurance business is shown by a study of the aggregates from 1914 to 1926, inclusive. Admitted assets have about tripled in this period, as have premium receipts and other items of income and disbursements. The figures show that five times as much new insurance was written last year as compared with 1914, while the total insurance in force, in both the ordinary and industrial departments, at the close of the period, is almost four times the total at its beginning.

One of the outstanding achievements of 1926 was the establishment of one of the life insurance companies as the largest financial institution in the world, replacing the Bank of England for that distinction. With all the increase in policies written, it is safe to say that the field for new business is still unlimited. A heavy percentage of persons carry no life insurance, or if they carry it, do not carry enough. Many of the companies have evolved very complete policies that give exceptional protection and should be given consideration by everyone who has others depending upon him.

RUSSIAN TRADE

Now that England and Russia are no longer in close commercial contact, the question is, who will get Russia's trade and who will lend the soviet much needed capital? The answer seems to be that the United States will get most of the trade and that Wall street will have the job of financing Russia. Whether we will lose or profit by this new circumstance remains to be seen, but there is no doubt that England will suffer by the loss of the Russian markets for her commodities.

Of course, estimates as to the commercial loss to England are affected by the political views of the calculators. Those who are violently anti-Bolshevik produce figures to show that the British trade won't be hurt, while those who oppose the government's move in the Arcos raid and subsequent developments, are inclined to predict dire results. Somewhere between these two extremes the truth will be found and there can be no doubt that the break will react unfavorably upon British commerce at a time when England can ill afford to lose markets for her goods.

The fact that Russia is a large exporter to England as well as an importer from England really means but little. Even if British purchases from Russia are reduced to match the reduction of Russian purchases in England, Great Britain will have to buy the goods elsewhere and will be losing an important customer for her port products. The effect is likely to be felt not only in the balance of trade but in British industries as well, particularly in iron, steel, shipping and coal. Furthermore what is England's loss will be to the advantage of some other nation, since Russia will also divert her purchases. Thus it looks as if America were going to be the unwitting gainer by England's break with Russia.

FACTS WORTH KNOWING

Science, which all too often concerns itself with matters of such great import that they do the average run of human beings little good, now and then does happen to stumble into the realm of the commonplace and discover something worth discovering. For instance, Mrs. Breta L. Greim, expert dietician, has just discovered that contented husbands are most easily obtained by feeding them tomatoes, corn and peas. Under no condition should husbands be fed heavy meat dishes, says Mrs. Greim.

Now this is worth knowing. Good wives have been following the wrong course since time immemorial if Mrs. Greim knows whereof she speaks. Too much emphasis has been placed on salve, soft soap, honeyed words, mince pie and beefsteak as husband food in the past, and this incorrect diet has no doubt been largely responsible for the terrible increase in divorces. By all means, bring on the tomatoes, corn and peas.

OLD MASTERS

I played with you mild cowboys blowing,
When I was six and you were four;
When garlands waving, flower-balls throwing,
Were pleasures soon to please no more.
Through groves and meads, o'er grass and heather,
With little playmates, to and fro,
We wandered hand in hand together;
But that was sixty years ago.

IN THE SPRING THE STREPTOCOCCUS

Erithrasia is caused by a species or strain of streptococcus. Septicemia (septic infection, acute blood poisoning) is caused by a strain of streptococcus in the worst cases. Streptococcus wound infection haunts the mind or conscience of the surgeon. This streptococcus is a kind of germ that commands great respect. Some strains of streptococcus are hemolytic—which means they have the power to destroy red blood corpuscles—and these hemolytic strains are often found in septic foci such as abscessed tonsils, silent abscess, or infection at the roots of filled teeth or teeth that have some denture applied. The hemolytic streptococci seem to have not only the power to destroy red blood cells but also a special affinity for certain types of tissue, for example the lining membrane of joints.

In the Presbyterian hospital in New York they had a series of severe hemolytic streptococcus wound infections two or three years ago. In the investigation of the source of the infection the physicians made some interesting observations. They found that the instrument nurse, in one instance, was a carrier of a hemolytic streptococcus identical with the streptococcus isolated from the infected wound. The nurse carried the germs in her nose. They took culture from the throats of all the members of the operating staff, and bacteriological study of the culture revealed 82 per cent of the members of the staff harbored hemolytic streptococci in their throats. Several carried the germs in their noses as well.

Then they decided to keep tabs on the staff through all seasons of the year—the attending surgeons, regular instrument nurses, anesthetists, orderlies, everybody in the picture, some 125 individuals. Of the 125 persons examined, 27 gave positive cultures at one time or another, all of hemolytic streptococci. Out of 55 physicians, 15 were found guilty of being streptococcus carriers, and out of 72 nurses only 8 were caught with the germs on them. This difference may be ascribed to the fact that the doctors came into close contact with more patients than nurses do.

One physician had a positive throat culture for seven months without himself having any symptoms. Several gave two, three or five successive positive cultures.

In May, 1925, when a large proportion of the staff had hemolytic streptococci in their nose or throat, rigid masking of both nose and mouth was ordered for all hands in the operating room. Thereafter for eight months not a single case of wound infection with hemolytic streptococcus occurred in the hospital.

This is pretty strong moral support for the preventive use of gauze face masks, a sanitary habit which many old fogey health authorities and reactionary medical brethren have been inclined to pooh-pooh.

As Dr. Frank L. Melny remarks, in the report of this forward demonstration: "Organisms are expelled from the mouth during speaking and from the nose during expiration . . . contained in droplets of mucus."

In the spring months, in 1925 and 1926, the largest number of the staff were found harboring streptococcus hemolyticus.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Keeps His Mouth Shut

All my life up to 112 years ago when I began reading your articles, I imagined I was unfortunate in that I "couldn't talk." I've had what I then thought was a "cold" for months at a time. I knew only short intervals of freedom. I have had no cold for over a year now. I merely keep my mouth shut when anyone with cr. talks to me, and I avert my face as much as I can in conversation with such people. I frequently work with cold wet feet. I formerly thought that explained my "colds." I know now that you are right. If I knew what kind of cigars you like I'd send you a box. (K. P. G.)

Answer—Maybe your method is a good one at that. It is reasonable, in the light of science, to think that my droplets of moisture carrying germs must make a direct hit on your lips or through your open mouth in order to bring about infection. I'm offa cigars for life. Gimme a match. —I have some pipes and a tobacco. Your letter pleases me more than any perishable goods could.

A German submarine was rammed and sunk by an American destroyer after a German born American bluejacket had snied the underwater craft, according to belief expressed by a certain American watchman, which returned part that day. This was the first German submarine whose sinking had been reported by the crews of the American patrol boats.

Germany had sunk about 2,000,000 tons of British ships since the unlimited submarine warfare was declared on Feb. 1, according to figures cited by a maritime expert.

COMING BACK AFTER A DISASTER

Washington, D. C. — Coming back after reverses is said to be characteristic of Americans. Coming back after disaster is certainly characteristic of American cities and communities, and of the country as a whole. After its worst disaster — civil strife that threatened complete destruction to the greatest modern experiment in government—the nation came back more united than ever and made it itself within an incredibly short period of time the strongest, most progressive, and richest nation in the world.

Chicago suffered a withering catastrophe by fire and before the ruins had cooled had begun her rehabilitation and came back to be the second metropolis of the country. Baltimore recovered quickly from a similar disaster. Galveston was almost wiped out by a tidal wave, with thousands of lives lost, and was rebuilt and is a far greater city than ever before.

San Francisco suffered a dual visitation of earthquake and fire and never lost her stride. Johnston, Dayton, Florida, and innumerable smaller communities have been ravaged by flood or tornado, and all have rallied under the bluegeonings of fate and come back to be bigger and better than ever. In fact, as has been said, there has never been a great disaster from earthquake or fire or storm in this country which has not been followed by increased activity in reconstruction work and by manifestations of the new energy brought to the front for overcoming such difficulties; all have been illustrations of the latent power always evidenced in time of stress.

And now it is the South that is preparing to stage a come-back from the ruin wrought by the Mississippi flood and that will be at the work of rebuilding and planning as fast as the waters recede. Pears have been expressed that the progress of the South would be retarded by this disaster, and unquestionably the property loss it has suffered is enormous. But the loss of life has been comparatively small and reports from all sections of the flooded area are to the effect that the people are on their toes, so to speak, and are ready to go to work.

SOUTH HAS GREAT RESOURCES

The South has great resources, in addition to the courage and energy of its people, with which to rally from this flood disaster. The wealth of the South is approximately $50,000,000,000 and the loss from the flood will be but a fraction of a per cent of that.

More than one-half of the total number of farms in the United States are in the South. The Southern States have 25 per cent of the farm acreage, 21.5 of the crop land, and 36 per cent of the pasture land of the country, according to the statisticians. The total value of all farm property in the South in 1925 was more than $15,000,000,000 or 27 per cent of the total for the United States. Since 1900 the value of farm property in the South has almost trebled. The total value of all farm crops in the South in 1925 was $2,556,788,000 — despite the low price of cotton — or an increase of $1,116,000,000 compared with 1910. The total value of the South's agricultural products, including crops and livestock, in 1925, was $3,232,000,000, which was almost double the total for 1910.

The Southern States are now producing nearly one-half of the entire country, it is stated. Last year South crop growers received more than $155,000,000 for their commercial truck crops of vegetables, fruits, and berries, which was 48 per cent of the aggregate for the United States. During 1925 these crops showed a gain in the South of $6,000,000 as compared with 1925, while there was a decline of more than $20,000,000 in the States outside the South.

In 1925 the South produced $95,000,000 bushels of corn valued at $216,189,000, and 22,580,000 bushels of oats. It produced 1,152,418,000 pounds of tobacco out of a total for the entire country of 1,223,000,000 pounds, and it had a banner cotton crop although it was far from as profitable as it might have been. The South also produced great quantities of potatoes, cabbage, rice, soy beans, and cowpeas, and fruits of many kinds.

For the present year there has been reported a decrease in the United States of 1,600,000 cattle, as compared with 1925, but the South shows an increase of 150,000 head and a gain in the value of its cattle of $4,000,000 over last year.

GROWTH IN MINERAL OUTPUT

Thirty-two per cent of the entire mineral output of the United States in 1925—figures for 1926 not being available—came from the South. This aggregate value of this mineral production in the South was $1,735,000,000, which was almost five times what it amounted to in 1910.

Much of that mineral wealth consists of petroleum, of which the South produced 437,536,000 barrels last year. This was 57 per cent of the total oil production of the United States and 59 per cent of the world's output. Of sulphur, the South turned out more than 2,000,000 tons and had a veritable monopoly so far as that country was concerned, for that amount was 92.9 per cent of all the sulphur produced in the United States.

The South, West Virginia, and Kentucky included in that geographical decision, does nicely in the matter of coal, also, having five times as much land as all of Europe, excluding Russia, and twice as much including Russia. Alabama's coal area alone is equal to that of Great Britain, and the coal area of West Virginia and Kentucky equals that of all Europe without Russia. Coal production in the South last year ran to 263,589,000 tons, which is about half the average annual production for the United States.

Last year the South expended almost $400,000,000 in road building and in maintaining its highways, and the expenditure this year will probably largely exceed that sum. To use its good roads the South has as many motor vehicles as there are in the whole world outside this country, a total of 5,800,000.

Foreign trade of the South runs into big figures—exports of $1,677,400,000 and imports of $528,409,000 for last year. The exports amounted to almost as much as those of the entire country in 1910. The South had three States in the list of the ten leading in value of export trade in 1925, Texas ranking second, Louisiana sixth, and Virginia tenth.

The South's manufacturing output last year exceeded in value ten billions of dollars, the figures being almost the same as those representing its aggregate banking resources in 1920.

And in considering the South's ability to move steadily ahead despite the flood it is not to be forgotten that railroads, public service corporations, and the Federal Government, as well as individuals, private corporations, and communities, will be spending immense sums in rehabilitation and reconstruction work. The larger part of this will be cash money—not credit or borrowed money—and that in itself insures prosperity even out of adversity.

SCHMIEGE BILL EXPLAINED

Editor Appleton Post-Crescent—The Declaratory Judgment Bill introduced by Oscar J. Schmiede, Appleton has become law, having passed both the Assembly and senate and having been signed by the governor. This bill is stated by members of the Wisconsin

Editorial note—This bill is binding on both parties and is subject to review and appeal the same as any regular action at law. This law will settle and afford relief from uncertain contracts and avoid insecurity with respect to rights, status, and other legal relations. Under existing laws previous to the passage of this bill a person had no way to find out if a contract had been entered into was illegal. Should one proceed to carry out this illegal contract and the courts held it so the person would have to go to jail, if the party believed it was illegal and then refused to proceed he would be liable to a heavy suit for damages. The law takes care of situations of this nature and avoids this insecurity. This bill received the backing of Dean H. S. Richards of the Wisconsin Law School, Alvin C. Reis, former Assistant Attorney General and of former Governor Francis E. McGovern.

This bill of which Assemblyman Schmiede is the author allows persons interested under a deed, will or contract or whose rights are affected by a statute, municipal ordinance, or public contract to have their rights or status determined before breaking the contract or law. This determination of the court will be binding on both parties and is subject to review and appeal the same as any regular action at law. This law will settle and afford relief from uncertain contracts and avoid insecurity with respect to rights, status, and other legal relations. Under existing laws previous to the passage of this bill a person had no way to find out if a contract had been entered into was illegal. Should one proceed to carry out this illegal contract and the courts held it so the person would have to go to jail, if the party believed it was illegal and then refused to proceed he would be liable to a heavy suit for damages. The law takes care of situations of this nature and avoids this insecurity. This bill received the backing of Dean H. S. Richards of the Wisconsin Law School, Alvin C. Reis, former Assistant Attorney General and of former Governor Francis E. McGovern.

Sincerely Yours,

John Kohl,

Secretary to O. J. Schmiede.

See-Sawing On Broadway

By Gilbert Swan

New York.—The beauty industry, having worked up a snappy trade in face lifting, nose adjusting and such, has now gone into the leg shaping line.

Slender ankles and calves being quite the vogue, a number of concerns have sprung up in the white lights belt. For $60, they announce, they will give anyone the leg lines of a glorified American girl.

New York youngsters are required to take their play where they find it and, being extraordinarily adaptable, manage somehow to forget their surroundings whenever they may be.

Not long ago a parade of huge apartment hotels thrust their noses up on Broadway from 45th Street, creating a problem of what to do with the offspring of tenants. The backyards were joined into a playground which, for location, is perhaps without parallel in the world. On all sides of it rise great skyscrapers. The sun touches it only as it swings over in mid-day and a lone tree shrivels from lack of sunlight. The theater bell backs right into it and the glare of half a dozen orchestras manages to escape and confuse the eardrums.

Actors, musicians and such lean out of back windows to watch the youngsters play, and perhaps nowhere can you find a more curiously assorted audience.

The other day I saw a celebrated actor in heated discussion with a stage hand over the form displayed by a lad of 12 in a handball game, while a chorine in costume killed time before going on stage by oversteering three little girls dressing dolls. In this one tiny space the spangled Broadway scene meets childhood for a few hours a day and stands absorbed.

And the children, quite unconscious of these old surroundings, sit on roller skate races and run about quite as though they were on the corner lot of Hamville Station.

Several of these children, I am told, have mothers and fathers in theaters, that back into the unique playground. Between acts and during rehearsals they join their youngsters for a few moments, some of them still in make-up. This is about the only chance such parents get to play with their youngsters, since there are matinees in the afternoon and they come home long after

MAY MILK PRICES TO BADGER DAIRYMEN HIGHEST SINCE '20

Feed Prices Continuing to Rise, Wisconsin Livestock Reporter Says

Madison—(P)—Wisconsin farmers received more for their milk in May this year than they have in the same month since 1920, figures reveal. The state and federal cooperative livestock and crop reporting service announced Wednesday that the average milk price for that month was $1.98 per hundredweight.

Feed prices are rising, the report reveals. It says:

"The May price this year was 18 cents above the May, 1926, price and 15 cents above May, 1925. It was 34 cents per hundredweight above the May average price of the last six years. These figures indicate that milk prices are still holding.

"Prices on dairy products have been relatively stable also. Cheese prices have held up particularly well this year. A heavy movement of cheese into the markets has been helpful in holding prices. The amount put into storage in May this year was below the amount a year ago. On June 1 storage stocks of cheese were 9 per cent below 1926. Production of cheese has been at a high level during the last few months.

GREATER BUTTER STORAGE

"The butter shortage which existed earlier in the year has been largely overcome and storage holdings are rising. The May receipts of butter were well above a year ago.

"Feed prices which were lower during the past winter than they were during the previous years started to advance in May and apparently the rise still continues. This tends to destroy a favorable spread which has existed between feed prices and the prices of dairy products. The outlook for the hay crop in Wisconsin is very good however; in fact, many sections report it as being the best in recent years. The condition of tame hay in Wisconsin was reported as 93 per cent of normal on June 1 this year as compared with 85 per cent a year ago and 81.2 per cent for the five year average.

CENTER FARMERS TO BUILD NEW FACTORY

Prepare to Incorporate to Replace Factory Destroyed by Fire

Farmers of the town of Center have made plans to incorporate for the purpose of building a new cheese factory to take the place of the factory operated by Ben Krueger, cheesemaker, which burned to the ground several weeks ago. Stock in the incorporation will be sold. Gust Henke, manager of the old factory, will hold the same position in the new organization and Mr. Krueger will continue as cheesemaker. The factory will be located on the former site one mile east of Batley corners. The building will be started as soon as the incorporation papers have been taken out and stock sold. Mr. Krueger is using his garage as a skimming factory where the farmers of the district take their milk.

MANY FARMERS IN SOIL TEST GROUP

Phosphate Fertilizers Important to Badger Soils, Expert Maintains

Outagamie-co has a large membership in the Wisconsin Soil Improvement association. Owners of farms who are members of the organization are having their soils tested and fertilizer problems studied by soilmen at the college of agriculture, University of Wisconsin. More than 700 Wisconsin farmers are members of the organization and are having their soils critically tested.

Monroe-co leads in number of members in the association with 130. Other counties near the top are Juneau, Outagamie, Langlade, Ozaukee, Portage, Shawano, Taylor, Saint Croix and Dane.

The use of phosphate fertilizers has nearly doubled in the state since last November when the association was organized, according to Griffith Richards, soils specialist at the agricultural college and one of the sponsors of the new organization. In his opinion, almost every piece of cultivated land in Wisconsin would pay for an application of phosphate.

Each member of the organization sends sample s of the soil from his farm to the association headquarters where it is tested. He also supplies information about the crops grown, yields, use of fertilizers, feed bought and manure applied to his land. With this information the specialists are able to recommend the necessary steps for keeping up the soil fertility and crop yields. Tests are being pushed from now until the first of September in order to give members plenty of time to order and receive next year's supply of fertilizer.

"FOOL PROOF" MILK TEST IS BECOMING POPULAR IN STATE

Milk Plants and Cheese Factories Using New Method, Expert Declares

Madison—(P)—A "fool proof" milk test that is inexpensive and accurate is becoming more popular in Wisconsin milk plants and cheese factories.

The test—methylene blue—is rapidly growing in use throughout the state, according to Harold R. Thornton, of the University of Wisconsin's agricultural school, and, although used more in milk plants than cheese factories, is equally adaptable to both.

Methods used in conducting the test, designed to classify milk into various grades, were described by Prof. Thornton in an interview. While the test first became known more than seven years ago, he said, it has not been in such general use as the plate test, common in many milk plants.

In contrast to the plate test, however, he pointed out, the methylene blue test is much faster, equally as accurate, and less expensive. Through it, Prof. Thornton said, "the test first became known more than seven years ago, he said, it has not been in such general use as the plate test, common in many milk plants."

CANT DETERMINE EXTENT

"The extent to which the test is being used can hardly be judged accurately," Prof. Thornton said, "but it is not so general in use in milk plants as the plate test. It is constantly growing in popularity, however, since it is an accurate means of determining the number of bacteria in milk."

"The principle of the test is the addition of methylene blue to a certain portion of milk, and incubation of the milk at body temperature. About twenty drops of the dye solution are necessary for about two tablespoons of milk."

"The test is reported in terms of time. The more bacteria there are in the milk the quicker the oxygen disappears since the bacteria take the oxygen from the dye. Decolorizing, the dye will lose the bluish color and the length of time which has elapsed since the dye is placed in the milk can also be judged in terms of bacteria."

"When the dye decolorizes in two hours or less the milk can be graded as very poor. From two hours to five and a half hours indicates fair milk, and over five and a half hours indicates good milk. Once a week specimens of the milk brought to various factories or plants should be placed in tubes for the test. Milk carelessly selected or produced under conditions where utensils are not sterilized, containing a large number of bacteria, will quickly be noted through application of the test."

"In most milk plants where the test is in use there is a tendency to pay according to the grade of milk. Better grade milk often brings a bonus. Under the methylene blue testing plan, 200 patrons can be handled in a day while with the plate test only about 25 samples can be taken."

The present test, he said, is the culmination of many contributions. The cost is only slightly above $15 for apparatus to handle 200 patrons a day, excluding glass ware.

"OFF" BUTTER HARMS DAIRYING INDUSTRY

Pound of Poor Butter Does Ten Times Damage Done by Oleo, Commissioner Says

Madison—(P)—Every pound of tub of "off" butter does more harm to the dairy industry than ten times that amount of oleomargarine, C. J. Kremer, state dairy and food commissioner, said Wednesday in commenting upon the recent decision of the supreme court, which declared the Wisconsin's oleomargarine law unconstitutional.

"The dairy industry of Wisconsin need have no fear of oleomargarine making inroads into the sale of butter," Mr. Kremer explained. "Rather, if the dairy industry wakes up and betters the quality of its products, it is bound to gain on the oleo industry, as it is carried on now."

"Wisconsin butter should be made so good that there would be no real competitor. If our dairy farmers will put out the product they should, they need have no fear of oleomargarine sale hurting their business."

The dairy and food commissioner believes that the supreme court decision "will end all attempts to bar oleomargarine by legislation." "Other states have attempted to tax the product but have found it unsuccessful," he explained.

Fulton Man Finds Large Profit Raising Asters

BY W. F. WINSEY

Special Farm Writer
Fulton—The first person in this vicinity to grow flowers for the market on a large scale is William N. Lee. Because he found that growers were making "big money" in raising asters, he restricted his operations to that variety.

In 1925, Mr. Lee raised 50,000 aster blossoms but, as he did not know how to market the crop, his sales amounted to only $100. He was selling to ten cent and dollar stores but these stores did not need the quantity of asters that Mr. Lee was able to supply. That season he had a splendid crop and was not bothered with pests.

In 1926, after discovering a market, Mr. Lee raised 20,000 blossoms and readily disposed of 15,000 of very good quality, but insects destroyed the rest of the crop.

This season, Mr. Lee set out 6,000 aster plants on less than one-half an acre of ground. He planted the seeds on April 16, in small boxes covered with glass. In about a week, he transplanted the plants an inch apart in boxes of the same size and kind. He started planting his field on June 6, thirty-five days after he sowed the seed.

The rows on the field are 30 inches apart with 15 inches between the plants. Although Mr. Lee's plants have not done as well as usual on account of unfavorable weather and the condition of the soil, he expects a big crop if conditions improve. He hopes to begin marketing his flowers the last week in August.

Each aster plant under favorable conditions produces from 20 to 30 blossoms. Packing and marketing lasts three weeks or until frost puts an end to the plants. Often a field is picked twice daily.

Mr. Lee picks 25 blossoms in a lot, wraps them in paper and picks them very carefully in boxes for shipment. The colors are pink, white, lavender and purple. There is no demand for red asters. In 1926 Mr. Lee sold 15,000 aster blossoms, that netted 2 cents each.

"An acre of asters, under favorable growing and marketing conditions, ought to net from $2,500 to $3,000," said Mr. Lee. As compared with a crop of tobacco, asters require more cultivation and about five times as much hoeing. The ground must be worked up after each rain and must be kept fine and level to produce the best results. "The better the soil is worked the better the prospect of a big crop," said Mr. Lee. Asters grow best in rich, loose, sandy loam soil and manure is an excellent fertilizer.

FERN DELL ANIMALS ARE READY TO START ON TOUR OF COUNTRY

Special Car Will Leave Monday for Shows in North Dakota Cities

BY W. F. WINSEY

Special Farm Writer

Green Bay—The show herd of the Fern Dell farms will start on a circuit of the cattle shows of the United States on Monday. Delbert Fox, Arthur Klussinger and Clayton Stoppel will be in charge of the car and A. W. Fox, manager of the Fern Dell farms, is to join the outfit on certain days of each week.

Eighteen animals are now in the herd, but more may be added at any time along the way. From July 4 to July 11, the herd will be on exhibition at Minot, N. D.; from July 11 to July 17, at Grand Forks; from July 17 to July 23, at Fargo, N. D.; from Fargo, the car will return to Green Bay to remain three days. The herd then will be exhibited at the Central State exhibition, Aurora, Ill., at the state fair, Springfield, Ill., the state fair, Milwaukee, and at Indiana State fair, Indianapolis. Beyond this the schedule has not been completed for the season. Possibly a southern circuit may be arranged. Last season, the Fern Dell show herd covered 15,000 miles and it is expected to make a much longer circuit this summer and fall.

One of the best cows of the breed lately has been added to the Fern Dell herd. She came from Falmouth, Mass. Another younger animal soon will be placed in the herd. Mr. Fox expects to leave for the east some time next week and to be gone a week or more. He reports leaving that his show herd is in fine shape.

LET YOUR CHILD PLAY WITH OTHER KIDDIES; HE NEEDS COMPANIONSHIP

BY OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

EDITOR'S NOTE—MORE ABOUT SELFISHNESS IS OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON'S THEME IN THIS EXCLUSIVE POST-CRESCENT ARTICLE. THE FIFTH OF A SERIES OF FIFTEEN ON THE TEN COMMANDMENTS OF CHILD TRAINING.

GROUP living means being able to get along happily and successfully with other people. Anyone can get along alone. But it is not good for the individual and for the whole, it is not good even if it were possible for us to be hermits, which it is not.

Every one must rub shoulders with the world, stand up for his own right, recognize the rights of others, give and take, live and let live.

The ability to adjust one's self to environment must be looked after while the child is still very young. A child brought up alone and not allowed to play with other children is going to grow a shell of selfishness that will make it absolutely impossible for him to successfully take his place in the world of affairs later on.

A little boy or girl should have friends, and I recommend a variety of friends. Let them argue out their little difference alone. If a parent step in, let it be only as counsel, not as judge.

The competitive game has its laws and the child learns to recognize a different kind of authority from the laws of Dad and Mother. He is learning hour of a very high sort—fairness, powers, and that most valuable thing in the world, the grace of losing without complaint. He is learning to be a "sport," in other words.

Watch your little boy (or girl) at play. If you see a tendency to "quit" when he is beaten, or hear him say suddenly, "Oh, I'm not playing," step right in and make him go back. And later explain to him that almost the most despicable person in the world is a "short sport" and a "quitter."

I cannot speak highly enough of the value of outdoor games and sports for children and young people. They stiffen the iron of the will and the alertness of the senses; they train the muscles and create healthy minds as well as bodies.

And here I am going to add, if your little girl's clothes come before her health and her great need for the companionship of other children, I am very sorry. I recommend the tom-boy girl.

THE TINYMITES

By Hal Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

OH, tell us 'bout the deep blue sea, said Clowdy. "Gee it seems to me, you ought to thrill us through and through with tales of down below." And tired out Scouty said, "All right, I surely will, but not tonight. It's getting pretty late and so to bed ought to go."

It did no good for them to plead, so after while they all agreed, and in about an hour they all were lost in slumberland. All through the night they slept real sound. At dawn they jumped up with a bound, quite rested up, and also pleased they'd done as Scouty planned.

They found a nice spot, nethered round and all sat down upon the ground. Wee Scouty shortly crawled right in the middle of the ring, and then he said, "Be quiet now, and I will gladly tell you how I got along away down in the stream, and every-thing."

For many hours they sat real still and Scouty gave them quite a thrill. They'd never heard a weird tale like the one he told, before. Then, when he told them, "That is all," the Tinymites began to call for him to tell it over again. They really wanted more.

Just then, however, old King Roar appeared upon the scene once more. Said he, "I have a dandy plan to give you heaps of fun. There's nothing more 'round here to see, so if you'll all just follow me, you'll have a trip." And so the bunch were short-ly on the run.

He took them to the beach, nearby. They saw him gaze up in the sky, and then he loudly clapped his hands. The whole bunch yelled, "Hurray," for in the distance they could see some birds approaching rapidly, and every Tiny knew that they were fly-ing down their way.

The Tinymites bid good-bye to King Roar in the next story.

SAINT AND SINNER

Because of the entire family's dread of his death before the marriage took of more publicity, Faith Lane and place. Nell said to her, in his pom-pous, nasal voice.

"Well, Mr. West," Cherry said wear-ily, but her cold eyes were watching him with secret amusement.

"Now, Mrs. Wiley, you have testif-ied on the witness stand that at the time of Mr. Clung's death you were no longer his fiancée, that you had broken your engagement with him."

"The executors of the will and the Clung boys are sure that they will be upheld in any court if they refuse to pay over to you the amount they, Mr. Clung, paid to his fiancée, but," he added hastily, as Cherry's face flamed with hot resentment, "we are more than willing to pay all counsel fees and other expenses connected with your trial, if you will voluntarily sign a paper of any kind in my favor."

"I won't have much money, dar-ling, but enough to be comfortable on," Bob told Faith as they planned the last details of their wedding, which was to take place the next day.

Let rise in a warm place for 30 minutes. Cream butter, beat in sugar, salt and eggs. The eggs are not beaten but are added one at a time and thoroughly blended before another is added. Add raisins. BILL HART'S DIVORCED WIFE WILL REENTER THE LAND OF FILMDOM

BY GENE COHN

NEA Service Writer

New York—The name of Bill is to flash across the great open spaces of Hollywood again.

It has been off the silver screen since "two-gun" Bill went into tem-porary retirement, or whatever it was, a season or two ago, but Winifred Westover Hart has been waiting patiently until she could untangle the legal knots that have held her for the last five years. And now, with the di-vorce difficulties off her hands and Bill Jr., grown to a strapping lad, she is going to pick up her career where she dropped it when her marital affairs be-came as complicated as most of "two-gun" Bill's western plots.

It seems that the blond and violet eyed Winifred had signed her name to an agreement that she would not ap-pear in the films or figure in the movie spotlight until a divorce decree had been granted. Willingly she was tied to domesticity, but now she is free to do as she pleases.

Winifred intends to keep the name Hart, for a time, at any rate, though she says she is equally determined to take the feminist attitude and "ride alone." She will make no effort to trade upon her ex-husband's reputa-tion.

As for Bill, Jr., he will not be forced into pictures.

"If he shows aptitude or inclination he can go," says his mother. "I will not press him into it, and will leave it pretty much up to him."

Young Bill has the narrow eyes of his "two-gun" father and can wear a ten-gallon hat with considerable gusto. He appears a born actor and is very likely to break in one of these days.

Winifred realizes that hers will be a task of beginning all over. Movie fans are a fickle lot and scarce remem-ber the heroines of a few months back to say nothing of those several years removed. Winifred Westover, the daughter of a San Francisco newspa-per man, was "discovered" at a Press Club show. She attracted the atten-tion of D. W. Griffith, back in the days when he was operating the Fine Arts studio, which grew into Trieste Films. She was leading lady for Dou-glas Fairbanks and played leading roles with Charlie Chaplin, Harry Carey and "Fatty" Arbuckle.

When she married Bill Hart she left the screen and when the marital split came she probably would have re-turned at once but for "them papers." She has several offers but has de-cided to sign no contracts.

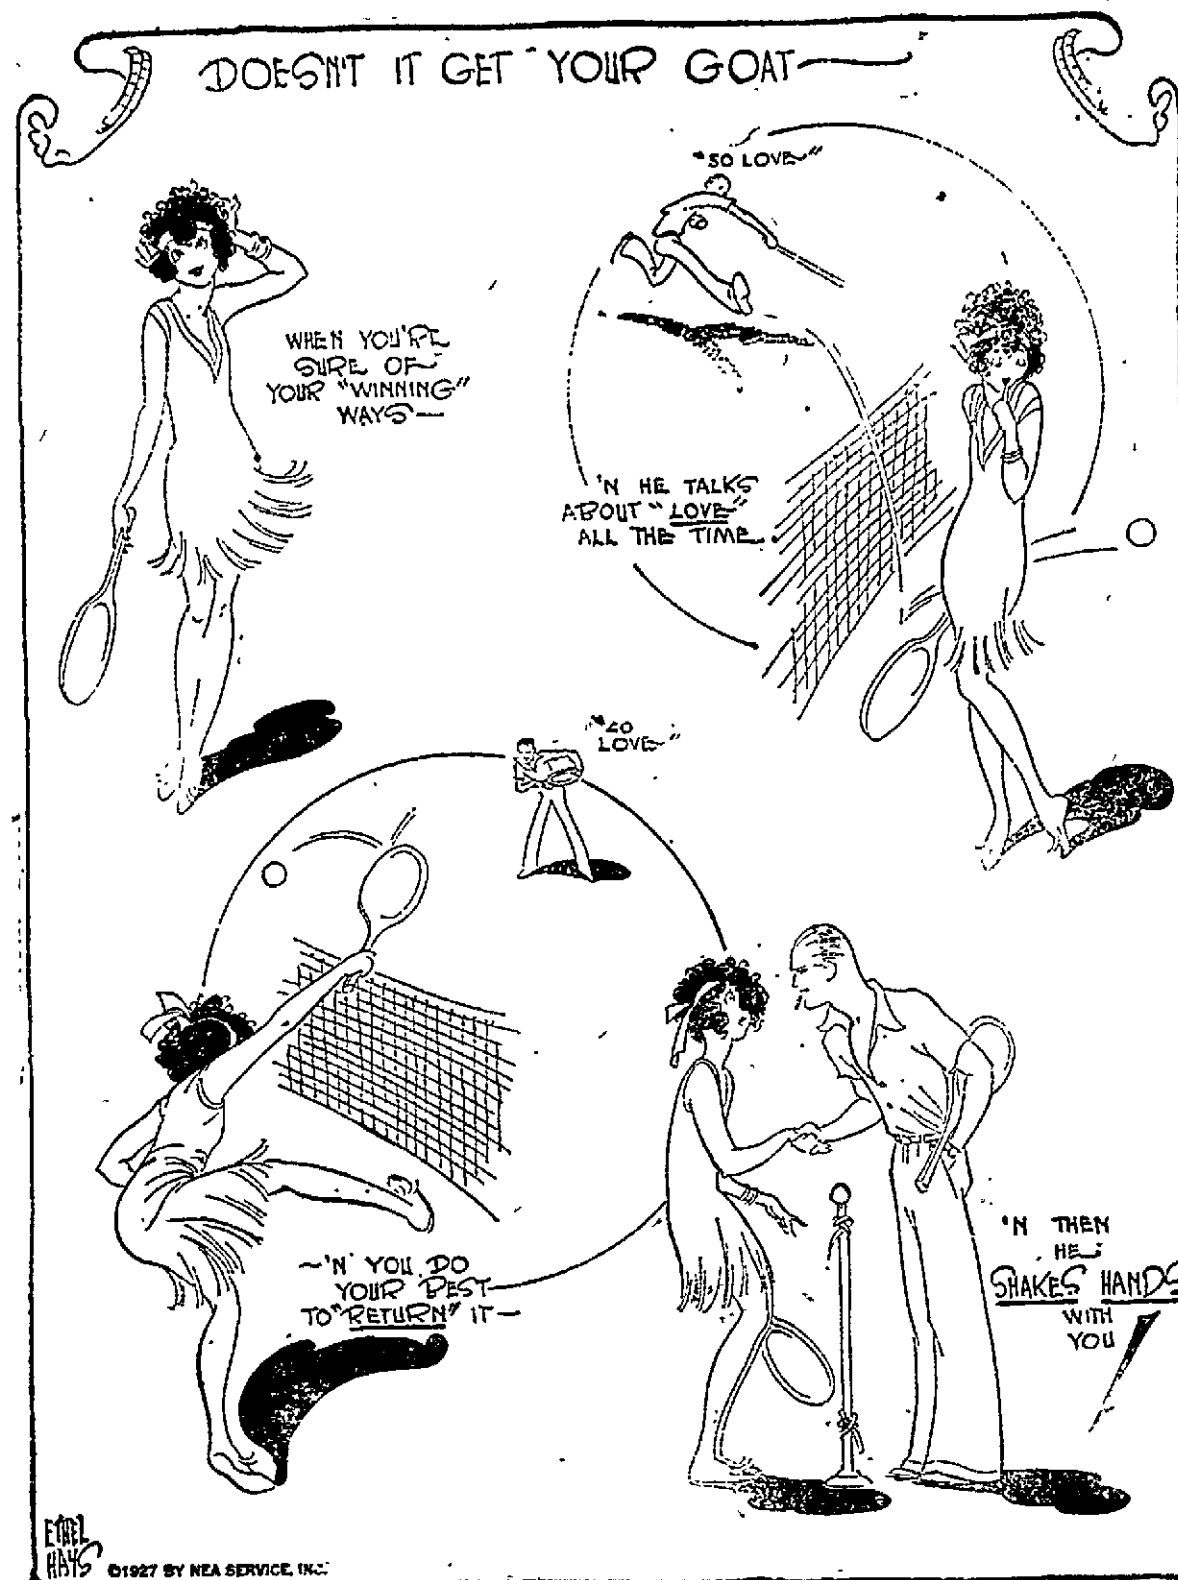

At any rate she has left the Hart farm in Connecticut to go back to Hollywood.

It actually vanishes from sight and the most heated atmos-phere will not produce the least shin-ness or greasiness of the skin.

No matter whether you are trou-bled with a poor complexion, wrinkles, puffiness around the eyes, freckles, crow's feet or lines around the mouth, ugly finger nails, or just a sim-ple roughness of the face, hands or arms caused by wind or sun, you will find that any or all of these troubles will quickly disappear with the use of Howard's Buttermilk Cream.

Convict Ship "Success" the Oldest Ship Afloat

This Wonderful Vessel Has Made History Through Three Centuries

She marked the beginning and the end of England's monstrous penal system.

She has held lurid horror and dreadful iniquities beside which even the terrible stories of the Black Hole of Calcutta and the Spanish Inquisition pale into in-significance.

She is the oldest ship in the world and the only convict ship left afloat out of that dreadful "Fleet of Ocean Hells" which sailed the Seven Seas in 1790 A. D. She is unchanged after all these years, nothing being omitted but her human freight and their sufferings from the cruelties and barbarities practiced upon them.

Aboard her are now shown, in their original state, all the airless dungeons and condemned cells, the whip-ping post, the manacles, the branding irons, the pun-ishment balls, the leaden tipped cat-o'-nine tails, the coffin bath and the other fiendish inventions of man's brutality to his fellow-man.

From keel to topmast she cries aloud the greatest lesson the world has ever known in the history of human progress.

THE CONVICT SHIP "SUCCESS" IS THE GREATEST AND MOST EXTRAORDINARY EXHIBITION THAT EVER VISITED AMERICA. IT IS A THEME FOR THE PEN OF A DANTE. WHEN YOU WALK HER DECKS, GROOVED WITH THE CHAINS OF HER MISERABLE VICTIMS, THE PAST WILL SPEAK TO YOU ITS SAD AND MOUERNFUL LESSON, BUT YOU WILL LEAVE FEELING BETTER BE-CAUSE YOU LIVE IN A BETTER AGE.

Ancient Teak Trees Are Preserved In Convict Ship

LOIS MORAN STAR OF

SCREEN'S "SOUNDINGS" "Soundings," the A. Hamilton Gibbs novel, has been translated into cinema terms by Julien Josephson, at Fischers Appleton theatre today and Friday as "The Whirlwind of Youth." Josephson's scenario was handled by Director Rowland V. Lee. Lois Moran, the sensation of "Stella Dallas" and "Padlock" is starred as Nancy, a young unsophisticated who suddenly finds herself thrust into the whirlpool of life. Donald Keith, Vera Vorelita and Alvyo Mills have featured roles. "The Whirlwind of Youth" starts when Nancy Hawthorne reaches the age of eighteen and for the first time discovers a strange, forbidding, foreign emotion known as love. Nancy hurries from the little English village to Paris, where she starts studying art. There, many things happen, not the least of which is her meeting Bob Whitaker. Love blooms for a fortnight, then slowly withers. Months later the scene changes and against a background provided by the booming of angry war guns, the seeds of affection once more burst into blossom. A synopsis as short as this can give only a bare outline of the story. Those who've already seen "The Whirlwind of Youth" are enthusiastic in their praise, claiming that Miss Moran's work will prove a revelation.

BUCK JONES WESTERN HAS GREAT STORY A treat for the youngsters, and we mean youngsters in spirits and not in years will greet those who see Buck Jones' latest Fox Film feature, "Hills of Peril," at the New Bijou Friday and Saturday. This is Buck at his best, in a wild, hard riding western thriller, jammed with action, brimful of fun and pulsing with life. It's a great story, too, all about a young cowboy whose wild practical jokes get him into all kinds of trouble and his adventures with a band of "red" bad men, a gang of moonshiners who terrorize the county and who think that Buck will make a good, bad member of the gang. Then there is the part played by

One hundred and thirty-seven years ago, tremendous trees of teak were felled in the density of a Burma forest, in British East India, and today remain intact in the massive bulk of the Old British convict ship "Success." Most aged of all ships afloat in the world, this weird and ancient craft is now docked in Green Bay, at the foot of Cherry-st. Like a true aristocrat fallen from high estate under the lash of revolution, she still retains unmistakable traces of an earlier grace. Seemingly contemptuous of masters who hold her captive, this once crowned queen of the Indian Ocean, though fast to the docks, appears alive to her unconscious power to lure and awe humanity upon her historic decks. In the early days the "Success" was truly a queen ship of the mists. Built in 1790, at Mouline, in Burma, British East India, she was launched as an armed East Indian Merchantman. In those days, wealthy passengers—European aristocrats and nobles of the highest Indian castes, met within her picturesque cabins, to lounge in the refinements of Oriental luxuries. To star the attacks of haunting pirates, glistening cannon of brass thrust through gapping ports braced with iron, and ready to rebuke with leaden fire, these marauders of the Indian Ocean. Although successful as a carrier of costly freights and passengers, with ports at London, England and Calcutta, India, the "Success" whose name was emblematic of her pristine glory, was replaced by faster vessels in 1862, and sold to the British Government. Thus to commence her career as a convict transport, and to sink into hellish depths of an iniquitous purpose. It is recorded that 167,000 men, women and children were sent to the Crown's penal settlements established in Tasmania (Van Diemen's Land) and to Botany Bay, Australia. During this dreadful period, the "Success" one of Georgia Hale, who believes that Buck is as bad as the rest when he joins the moonshiners to discover who killed the sheriff. But it all ends very happily as it should.

a fleet of "Ocean Hells," carried hundreds of victimized wretches with desperate criminals, from the Imperial Isles of Great Britain and Ireland, to the sun-wetted prison camps on the other half of the earth; a distance of nearly sixteen thousand miles across the tides. As one mentally views the panorama in procession of her past, the imagination glows with inflated pictures of her sombre interior. And again are heard the cries and lamentations of her prisoners mourning in the narrow confines of her awful cells. From the past are come again those wretches who could but weep in the plight of their fate—indestructible. Upon pages laid with historic infancy are written the stories of the convict ship, in whose dungeons cringing creatures, laid low by brutalities unspeakable, must have cursed the fact of life! Tet, Death, the "kind doctor of all our ills," would occasionally extend a solemn hand, to quiet their incessant murmurings with merciful and infinite peace. On board today are shown, in their original state, though not in their original purpose, (for instruments of torture now hang as more relics of the dead) ponderous leg-irons, no longer used to impress tings of blood on the ankles of hapless creatures; great balls of iron, no longer used to deform the spines of men; iron straight-jackets, no longer placed on men who dared to revolt against cruelty and injustice. One sees with eyes opened wide in amazement of such horrors, the unthinkable coffin bath, laden tipped cat o' nine tails, arless dangerous, and other means to torture and terrify these convicts of that century of horrors. But as if to redeem in a measure the shame of her past, the "Success," now owned by her American commander, Capt. D. H. Smith, is on a tour of the world, crying mutely against present day infamies. Reminding us of duty to safeguard human liberty to turn our faces to the rising sun of human progress, and ever to

CARDINALS REPLACE CUBS ON HEELS OF PIRATES IN N. L.

Redbirds Take Second Straight From Bruins To Hold Them In Third

Alex Tames Old Mates; Babe Homers Twice as Yanks Take Another Double Bill

While the Yankees strode far ahead of the American League pack with four wins in two days, the Cardinals Thursday were replacing the Cubs as the imminent threat to Pirate leadership of the National League.

Fading after failing to best the Pirates in their two-game duel for the lead, the Cubs, who recently won 12 games straight, have now dropped four in a row, three of which went to fatten the averages of the rising Redbirds. The latest was won Wednesday, 11 to 5, and gave the Cards a clean sweep of the Cubs series. It was a personal triumph for Grover Cleveland Alexander. The iron-armored veteran took the mound out of turn and held his old team to six scattered hits.

Facing the lovely Reds in a series, the Cardinals have a fine chance to make things even hotter for the Pirates. Still up in front and holding their own, the Pirates unloaded their hitting howitzers and dropped the Red by 11 to 9, in a game that saw eight pitchers, four for each team.

The Yankees second duplex win in two days over the Red Sox featured a full day in the American League with three double headers. While the Yankees won their nearest rivals marked una by breaking even.

BABE TIES RECORD

Babe Ruth's twenty-third and twenty-fourth homers in the first game helped the Yanks to their 7 to 4 victory and made him all even with his home run showing for the first time in 1921, his record year. The 3-2 decision in the second game was won on a minimum of hitting. In both games the Sox made the more hits, but could not cash them for runs as effectively as the league leaders.

Al Thomas scored his eleventh victory of the season in pitching the second place White Sox to an 8-5 victory over the Browns in the second game of their double bill. The first was lost in ten innings, 3 to 2.

Fighting the Athletics for the third place rung, the Senators bested them in the first session by 4-2 on the pitching of the rookie, Lizenberry, who lost the advantage in a 13 to 7 defeat as the Mackes slammed 15 hits off two less potent pitchers.

BUTTE DES MORTS GOLF PLAYERS MEET OSHKOSH

Golfers of the Butte des Morts Country club will participate in their second interclub match in two weeks Saturday afternoon when Oshkosh Country club invades local course. J. J. Plank will be captain of the Butte des Morts team for the match, which will be preceded by a luncheon at the clubhouse at 12:15.

The Nassau system of play will be used and for the 18-hole match. It is expected that Oshkosh will bring 20 or 25 players for the match and the best 20 or 25 players of the local club, as the case may be, will be pitted against the Sawdust city men.

TAXIMEN SPLIT PAIR OF SOFTBALL GAMES

The O. K. Taxi softball team has split even in a pair of games with Appleton rivals in the last few days. The Taximen whipped for a former defeat by trouncing that crew, 14-13, Strutz, Whippert hurler, was knocked from the box.

The Fox River No. 2 team took a 12-inning struggle from the Taxies by a score of 8-7 after one of the hardest fought battles of the year. Lutz starred for the losers and Brautigan for the winners.

Science Triumphs Over Brawn In Armour's Win

BY JIMMY POWERS

New York—We want you to know Tommy Armour.

We want you to know the REAL Tommy Armour. The one who is a head and a body riddled with shrapnel and a heart as brave as any guy who came out of the roaring furnace of war to win his best honors on the battlefield of Sport.

Tommy is touring the golf courses of this fair land of our cashing in on a modern professional lately crowned champion of the U. S. A.

Now Tommy, although he may not know it, will be the embodiment of a great Moral Lesson. Fellows who went about lugging a great Moral Lesson were always more or less of a pain in the neck to this writer. But Tommy is different.

Did you ever stand at the first tee of the average country club and see the players drive off? Bankers with round tumms, thin, anemic doctors, lawyers, dentists, business men with delicate constitutions, under-sized chaps—all sorts, all shapes. FROSH, SOPHS GET CREDIT FOR SPORTS

Badger Underclassmen Get Physical Ed. Marks for Internmentals

Madison—The expansion of the University of Wisconsin intra-mural athletic program received great impetus Thursday when it was announced that all freshmen and sophomore students are to be allowed physical education credit for participation in intra-mural sports.

This plan will be inaugurated by George Little, Director of Athletics, during the current year. Under the new arrangement, a student is not forced to choose in the regular gymnasium classes, but is given the option of playing team games in some league. The crediting of this work toward the two years of required physical education is a great improvement over the former system.

The regular program, as in the past, included general gym, swimming, track, boxing and others. The intra-mural program will take in all forms of competitive sports; namely, football, basketball, track, baseball, touch-football, indoor baseball, bowling, golf, tennis, swimming, skating, wrestling, boxing.

In registering for intra-murals for credit, the man must designate his fraternity, dormitory, church or independent league affiliation. The Wisconsin league will care for all who have no definite connection with any organizations of the above nature. The giving of credit for participation in team games in intra-mural league marks a decided step forward in the history of physical education.

Many institutions will undoubtedly follow along with similar legislation, as Wisconsin is practically alone in her decision to so broaden the requirements. The student body is active for when they have long hoped for such an improvement. It brings very much closer the oft expressed ideal "Athletics for All" or a wholesale participation in athletics by the students.

KIMBERLY CARDED FOR HARD WEEKEND

Kohler Team There Saturday; Meet Strong Pails Sunday

Kimberly—The Kimberly Baseball team is up against two tough customers this week end when they meet the Kohler of Kohler squad at Kimberly park on Saturday in a non-league game, and play the Menasha Fox river valley league team in a league battle on Sunday at Menasha park.

The Kimberly team has never defeated the Kohler squad in non-league play, and play the Menasha Fox river valley league team in a league battle on Sunday at Menasha park.

The Sunday game at Menasha will have considerable bearing on the league standings as Menasha is right on the trail of the first place Kimberly team. Menasha has handed Oshkosh her only two defeats of the year. At the two teams last meeting, the Kimberly squad overcame a pinch hitting rally on the part of the Menasha squad to triumph by a 4 to 3 score.

Remember, also, that it seems only a short time ago that a grim-faced youth of 17 quit the campus of Edgewood University and went marching off to war. For four hectic and adventuresome years Tommy went through enough hell to chasten the spirit of any man and yet today you'll not find a plucker or cower man on the golf links.

Some experts who failed to pierce his stolid mask never understood him. Many have written that Armour is not a great golfer. Of course he is not a great golfer. His score of 201 is not so much. But that's not the way to look at it. He won it. He had to fight to win it. And it was a thrill, a dramatic battle.

Here is a little insight into the character of the man. He is not cocky, to the point of offensiveness. "I was memorizing under my breath a little speech of congratulation to Harry," he told me in the Oakmont locker room afterward, "and I kept talking it over and over. I started it at the eleventh green. I wanted to show him I was a good sport. I was feeling one of them if they ever expect to be a great golfer and you will get a slow, negative reply. Why? Oh, because, they'll say, they have not the broad shoulders of a Hagen, the iron wrists of Jim Barnes or Harry Cooper, the stocky bulk of Bobby Jones or the same."

MORE HOSPITALS ARE NEEDED FOR INJURED JOCKEYS

Race Courses Now Providing Better Care for Both Horses, Riders

Belmont Park, N. Y.—The steep decline in the number of jockeys in the United States is a direct result of the fact that the American Association of Jockeys is now in a position to demand that the race courses provide better care for both horses and riders.

As one expert here points out, we have learned to expect such things as part of the game of steeplechasing. But what about the American Jockey? The brave horses that break down or break their legs in steeplechases and the ordinary running races. Pony McAttee is still nursing a bruised and battered body, thinking his stars he is alive to tell of how Silenus booted into the rails with him.

After some cursing and cursing, and pinning McAttee beneath him, the colt lashed out with his hind legs in an effort to regain his feet. An almost unbroken record of McAttee's evidence of where those legs struck. The rider's left thigh was laid wide open in its contact with the rails.

The emergency hospital in the new administration building at Belmont, called the most beautiful race course in the world was in complete readiness, a surgeon was in it and prepared for the patient by the time he arrived in the motor. A tremendous wave of sympathy swept over the crowd followed by a rustle of relief when it heard of the care given McAttee.

"It's not just the need of this over a long period," said Mr. Widener, "but when it is needed it is needed badly and it is worth all the expense."

But what about the horses? Evidently the Canadian association is prepared to take care of BOTH horses and riders—having ambulances waiting for both of them. In these enlightened United States too often that is not the case.

"When will all our associations have facilities for the most prompt and least painful relief of injured horses? Are they to have horse ambulances in readiness at these $1,000,000 places are the fans to be regarded with the lightest of a horse with a broken leg let half a mile across the infield? Or perhaps being shot to death in full view?"

Of course the thousands of race fans can always look the other way when some poor horse, its leg broken, is led off hobbling horribly to the broken stump. But somehow it doesn't seem just right.

Wednesday—Post-Crescent vs Legion (Post.)
Thursday—Co. D vs Bankers
Friday—Brandt Co. vs Interlakes

Rain halted the second game in two days in the City Twilight Softball league Wednesday, "bailing up" the schedule badly once more as there now are about six postponed games to be played off.

The postponed game schedule on Monday's was just getting to where the teams could see light Wednesday's game was called off between the Post-Crescent and the Legion and would have brought together two leading contenders for the loop banner in an important contest to the standings. On Tuesday the Badger Printer-Civics game was called off.

Co. D and the Bankers meet Thursday in a game which will involve third, fourth, fifth, and sixth places. A Bank win will tie that crew with the Legion and Badger Printers for third in the loop and will keep Co. D in sixth. A Co. D win will pull the Bankers from fifth to a sixth, moving the winners above them. Friday, the centipede Brandt crew is called to meet the loop-leading Interlakes.

KIMBERLY SOFTBALL TEAM DESIRES GAMES

A Kimberly softball team, said to be the pick of the entire village and mill employees, challenges any softball team in the Fox river valley to a game. The team is called the Kimberly Independents and consist of many of the men who placed the village second to the Fox River valley in the first annual softball tournament last fall. It gave the crack local squad, pick of Appleton's softball players, two tough battles, losing by close scores.

Games can be played any night except Monday and Friday when the regular Kimberly Softball League is in play. For game managers see 952-40 to know. Dad Courcane at 1200 during working hours and 9765 1200 after that time or write him at Kimberly.

VAIL PUSHES CARD FROSH CREW HARD

Green Badgers Lack Polish in Preparation for 'Keepsie Race

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—The University of Wisconsin freshmen are here for the regatta next Wednesday, but Coach Vail insists that the team is not in the best of shape for the regatta.

Vail admits to two good men in the boat, Parks at No. 6 and his stroke, Lucas, who rowed last year at the Culver Military academy. That is something which should not be murmured outside of the boat house, perhaps, but it indicates as well as anything the situation here.

Lacking the months of rowing the Pacific coast oarsmen have under their belts, the Badger yearlings are being driven harder at this stage than any other crew on the river. Whether or not Vail has the material, he will try his best to round out a crew which will give a good account of itself. One thing the Wisconsin men do not lack is heart.

The boys are in good shape with a few pounds apiece to spare. They are trying hard, but the boat looks clumsy. It is not a polished crew and Vail has had to exercise his knowledge of rigging to keep the shell riding evenly on the water.

This year the squad is living at the historic Nelson house and sharing the boat house with Rusty Callow's Washington squad. As the result of the race last Saturday at Madison, the two squads have become very friendly.

The freshman race this year is a record breaker with eight entries. For the first time in the history of the navy's connection with the regatta, it has sent its plebe crew. It was this plebe eight which broke the freshman record in the Schuykill at Philadelphia, and, with half a chance, will smash another record on the Hudson this year.

This afternoon Vail took the Badgers to his favorite cove downstream and instructed the boys in the gentle art of getting away from a stake boat. Since the flying start has been discarded, the standing start is given a prominent place in the training program.

BONINI BALLMEN WIN IN BUTCHERS' LEAGUE

The Bonini Butchers outplayed the Hopewespeper crew the entire game Tuesday evening in a Butchers' Twilight Softball League battle, winning by a score of 23-11. The Bonini battery was Nabbefeldt and Christian and Feldt and Foster worked for the losers. The Voeks-Peterson and Reichenberg crew was postponed until Thursday evening because of rain. The games are played at the Fifth ward park on the north side of Packard-st.

DEMPSEY PLANS TO BEAT SHARKEY AND TUNNEY FOR CROWN

Expects to Beat Jack, July 21, Gene in September, Then Defend Title

New York — (AP)—Three big fights Thursday blazed the trail Jack Dempsey has mapped out to carry him back to boxing supremacy over all the world.

First is the battle with Jack Sharkey, July 21, in the Yankee stadium. The other two are conditional upon success in the ones that come before, but Dempsey is certain he will still be on his feet when the third is over.

The second is a return fight with Gene Tunney in September 16—Dempsey says "after" he beats Sharkey. Third is a bout not later than September 22, for defense of the title.

Dempsey would win back by downing both Sharkey and Tunney. After signing agreements as soon as Tex Rickard can place the papers before him, Dempsey wants to leave at once to train for Sharkey, probably at Saratoga Springs, New York.

Rickard invited Dempsey and Sharkey to appear at his office at the same time Thursday for the signing. Dempsey is bronzed and healthy, carefree and confident, weighing just over 200 with the slightest bit of over-fullness in his cheeks. "He looks great to me," exclaimed Rickard on Dempsey's arrival. "Snappy, light on his feet, clear eyes and he carries himself as he did when he was a kid in this business."

Instead of splitting even with Sharkey, Dempsey is to receive 30 per cent and the ex-tar 20 per cent of the gross receipts for their stadium bout. Rickard expects the gate to run more than $1,000,000.

SCHLAFLER NINE MEETS ACES, MENASHA SUNDAY

Old rivals will clash Sunday afternoon at Wilson field when the Schlafers Hardware Co. team and the Appleton Aces meet. The squads have been rivals for the last two years and judging by past performances a fast, closely-contested game is in store.

Murphy will hurl for the Hardware men and Gebke for the Aces. Sunday morning the Schlafers squad battles the Menasha Rounders at Menasha in a postponed game, scheduled to start at 9:30. The afternoon game will be called at 2:30. The Schlafers lineup is Ed Helms, ss; Kuehn, 1b; Laabs, 3b; Malver, cf; Krueger, c; Marx, 2b; Erv. Helms, rf; Krause, cf; Murphy, p.

Cincinnati — (AP)—Reddy Blanchard, St. Paul, knocked out Vincent Hambricht, Philippines (S).

JOSEPH BRITZ
Milwaukee man, who will handle the second annual golf tournament of the Wisconsin department of the American Legion, in his capacity as state legion athletic officer. The meet will be held at the Tuckaway Country Club course at Milwaukee next Monday and Tuesday. A team representing Oney Johnston post may enter the meet though it still is unchosen. Peter Goerl is in charge of the local team.

GORMAN SUBSTITUTES FOR CHILEAN FIGHTER

Chicago — (AP)—The substitution of Bud Gorman, Kenosha heavyweight for Romero Rojas, Chilean boxer, in the main event of the heavyweight card here June 30 has been ordered by the Illinois Athletic commission.

Rojas was declared no fit opponent for Jim Maloney of Boston. The commission pointed out he had lost six fights in this country and was more fitted for a preliminary, until he had established himself as a main bout contender.

RIVERVIEW GOLFERS CLOSE JUNE HANDICAP

The finals for the June handicap will occupy golfers of the Riverview Country club Saturday afternoon. Three prizes will be awarded for the three lowest number of putts on 18 holes for anyone playing during the afternoon.

Indianapolis—Johnny Risko, Cleveland, outpointed Chief John Metoqual, Oklahoma City (10).

Baetz Leading Appleton Batsmen In First Valley League Batting Averages

Local Gardener Third in Loop; Three Other Appleton Men Bat Over .300

C. O. Baetz, right fielder and former manager of the Appleton baseball club of the Fox River Valley League, leads local batsmen in the loop averages issued this week by C. L. PreFontaine, loop-president. The marks do not include games of last Sunday. Baetz stands third in the entire loop for players who have played more than three games and have stood up to the plate at least 12 times. He has clouted six hits in twelve bats for a mark of .500.

First place in the loop is held by Hank Thein, Kimberly gardener, but he has batted only once, getting one hit for a 1.000 mark. The real leader is Marty Lamers also of Kimberly, who accumulated nine hits in fifteen bats in five games for a mark of .600. Second in the list is S. Sheleske of Neenah with ten hits in eighteen bats in four games for a mark of .555.

The leading ten batters, irrespective of trips up are H. Thein, Kimberly, 1.000; M. Lamers, Kimberly, .600; J. Oshkosh, Oshkosh, .599; Kaminski, Menasha, .500; S. Sheleske, Neenah, .555; Young, Green Bay, BAETZ, APPLETON, and Cooke, Kaukauna, .500; Schell, Kimberly, .463; A. Omar, Menasha, .434. The leading ten batters who have really played enough games to be counted as sluggers are in order of averages: M. Lamers, S. Sheleske, BAETZ, Schell, A. Omar, Cooke, Kimberly, .411; A. Kilgas, Kaukauna, .400; TORNOW, APPLETON, .389; L. Smith, Kimberly, .352; E. Sager, Kaukauna, .350. The only Appleton batters over the .300 mark besides Baetz and Tornow are Mayeske with one hit in three bats and last with four hits in twelve bats for marks of .333.

NO FIRE CRACKERS TO BE SHOT UNTIL JULY 3, SAYS MAYOR

Threatens Jail for Those Breaking Law; Near Accidents Reported

Premature exploding of firecrackers by persons who cannot wait until July 4 to indulge in this pastime has been the cause of several near accidents in Appleton during the past week. It is reported. Many local retail dealers have supplies of fire crackers and other explosives which they have placed on sale.

While there is no state or local law against selling fire crackers or other explosives before July 4, Mayor A. C. Rule said that the police department would arrest anyone caught shooting explosives before July 3.

"It is the plan of the administration to allow the stores to sell the fireworks but the police department will enforce the ruling against shooting them before July 3," Mayor Rule said. "We give the children two days on which they can shoot all the fire crackers they desire but we expect them to wait and do all the shooting on those two days only."

It was reported that one woman became so frightened when a small boy exploded a fire cracker behind her back that she jumped off the curb directly in the path of an approaching automobile and an accident was avoided only by the diligence of the driver. Several other narrow escapes also were reported.

Although there is no state or local law regarding the time when fireworks may be placed on sale there are restrictions regarding the kinds which may be sold. These laws will be strictly enforced, Mayor Rule said, and any one found guilty of breaking either the state or local laws will be prosecuted.

The state law prohibits the sale of firecrackers longer than two and one-half inches or more than one-half inch in diameter. It also prohibits the sale of torpedoes, blank cartridges and the toy pistols which shoot caps.

Following is the local ordinance: Any person having for sale or offering for sale or selling in the city limits of the city of Appleton, fire crackers or toy pistols for the purpose of exploding dynamite caps or blank cartridges, or dynamite canes or other devices for the purpose of exploding dynamite or powder caps, shall be punished by a fine of not less than $25 or more than $50 or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding ninety days or both such fines and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court.

CONFERENCE TO SPEND $18,000 FOR CHILDREN

Madison (AP)—The Wisconsin Conference of Social work will spend $18,000 during the coming year for work with dependent and neglected children. Its board of directors voted at their quarterly meeting here.

Studies of the requirements of the children in the state will be made as well as of child care institutions, juvenile courts, and mothers' aid pensions. Four county surveys will be made: In Rock, Racine, Kenosha and Waukesha counties. Eau Claire was selected as the location for one of the regional meetings to be held in September.

Those present at the meeting were: Miss Marie G. Kohler, president. Sheboygan; John S. Donald, treasurer, Madison; Aubrey W. Williams, secretary, Madison; Mrs. Edwin C. Thompson, La Crosse; Dr. Robert E. Churchill, Milwaukee; Bernard M. Palmer, Janesville; A. D. Sutherland, Fond du Lac; Mrs. J. William Gross, Milwaukee; C. E. Traver, Milwaukee; Miss Minnie Sands, Hartland, and Oscar Nelson, Janesville.

JIGGS AND MAGGIE CARRY JAPANESE NATION BY STORM

Here is striking first-hand evidence of how that great comic, "Bringing Up Father," which is published in the Post-Crescent, has captured the fancy of millions in far-off Japan. In the very first paragraph of an interesting article entitled "Japanese Humor," published in the Saturday Evening Post this is what Yusuke Tsurumi wrote:

"When Jiggs and Maggie began to appear on the front page of the evening edition of the 'Tokio Asahi' with over half a million circulation, about three years ago, wise men of the town, shook their heads and said, 'They are going too far.' It did not take two weeks to find out, however, that the wise men were wrong and the editors of the paper were right. The weird American humor, as it seemed to the wise men, carried the whole nation before it. The curious expression of 'Jiggs' and 'Maggie,' with still more curious mentality and idiosyncrasies took the whole nation by storm. People vied with one another in picking up the paper every afternoon to see what these two great Americans had done that day. It became so popular that it was dramatized and put on the stage with success. Then another daily came out with 'Bringing Up Father' with the same amount of success. Side by side with Japanese creations, American cartoons began to be a distinctive feature of Japanese dailies. The shrewd publishers knew the temper of people better than the wise men."

CHANGE MAIL RULES FOR PAINT, VARNISH

Paints, varnishes, etc., may be sent in the sample mails to Great Britain. It has been announced by the postal department contrary to previous rulings. The change will be effective at once.

The notice reads, "Paints, varnishes and inflammable substances generally up to a gross weight of eight ounces and having a flash point of ninety degrees or more will be accepted for transmission in the sample mails to those countries" including those of Great Britain which were prohibited importation in August, 1926.

Such samples must be packed in accordance with the department provisions for packing of inflammables, it was stated.

A Moscow workman won 100,000 rubles in a lottery and was so elated that he left without claiming his reward.

URGES ACTION FOR NEW OSHKOSH LINKS

Municipal Course Cannot Accommodate Golfers Speaker Declares

Asserting that the present Oshkosh municipal golf course is a considerable asset to the community, but it is so popular it is overcrowded, Carlton H. Foster, former president of the Oshkosh chamber of commerce, urged Rotarians of that city to take favorable action toward reviving the plan for an addition to the municipal course at May Jewell park.

Mr. Foster said that the project would not affect the taxpayers as the bonds for the project differ from ordinary bonds in that they will be self-supporting and self-liquidating.

More room is needed at once, the speaker said. The park board has options on land that will make the addition possible.

Many Appleton golfers drive to Oshkosh to use the municipal course. A deputy clerk in New York City performed $5,000 marriages in five years.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

BILLY WELLS, NYDA LOMAN and WINNIE SHELTON are chosen by T. Q. CURTIS from his big department store to come into his home as his wards for one year because he wants to help them further ambitions each has expressed.

Billy, ambitious to be a concert violinist, is the only one that is in earnest. The others like to enjoy his generosity for the year. Billy becomes infatuated with and secretly engaged to DAL ROMANINE, nephew of MRS. MEADOWS, the hostess. Dal is also "playing" Winnie Shelton. Billy loses interest in her music. T. Q. notices this, and also that Nyda, who professed an ambition to become a kindergarten teacher, is not at all interested in her work. Winnie, who wants to be a private secretary, seeks to win his favor by offering to do his stenographic work in the evenings. T. Q. discovers his safe has been robbed by someone on the "inside." Suspicion is cast on Billy. She asks CLAY CURTIS, son of her benefactor, to help her. Clay has disinherited himself and is living with the Wells family, working in a factory by day and writing music at night. Clay forces a confession from EDDIE BANNING, Nyda's old sweetheart, and Nyda, who also admits being married. T. Q. does not prosecute them.

Winnie finds a document in T. Q.'s desk, showing that Billy is to be adopted, and tricks T. Q. into a proposal of marriage. VIOLEA, the maid, whom Winnie paid to witness the scene, gives the ruse away. T. Q. calls Billy and Mrs. Meadows into the library and tells them the whole thing. When Billy is left alone with T. Q., she confesses that the three girls of her plan to adopt one of them all along and they had not played the game fairly. When he tells her to be his daughter, she refuses, saying she has other plans for her life. She plans to go at once to Rome and she telephones him at his apartment.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER LVIII

Billy set her suitcase down in the hall of the apartment house a few paces from Dal's door before she pressed the bell below a chastely engraved card — "Dalhart Romane." Over the telephone she had told him only that she must see him immediately at his apartment, and had volunteered no explanation whatever of her unusual demand.

"Hello, darling!" He stood before her, immaculate, distinguished, a white gardenia in the lapel of his perfectly fitting coat.

"May I come in, Dal?" she laughed shyly, as he still held the door almost closed behind him.

"I'm taking you to dinner, am I not?" he countered. "I had another engagement, but I called it off, of course. My car is waiting at the curb."

"I've got to talk with you, Dal—privately. Don't be afraid of scandal," she reassured him.

She wondered why he looked so embarrassed as he threw the door wide and stepped aside for her to enter, but when she was in the room she understood. It was a mean little place, so utterly different from the setting in which she had imagined Dal Romane that she was bewildered. It was a one-room apartment, an open door giving a dismaying glimpse of a tiny bath, the tile floor cluttered with soggy towels. The room itself was small, poorly furnished, its crudeness relieved only by a few pieces of carved and painted brass ware from India. There was nothing exotic about it; it was not even very clean.

"Rather poor digs for a gentleman, Dal," he confessed. "I am in my apartment so little that it never seemed worth while to move. But what is the matter, darling? You frightened me almost out of my senses when you telephoned. I have never heard your voice so agitated."

Without invitation from him, Billy removed her mole skin coat, flung it with her little jungle green velours hat, across the back of a chair, then, aware that his eyes had been watching her uneasily, she went to him and held out her arms.

"Aren't you glad to see me, Dal? Please say you are, anyway," she begged with a laugh that was not mirthful.

He kissed her briefly, then led her to the disreputable sofa and drew her down to his side. "Something rather tremendous has happened. I can tell by the hectic light in your eyes and the red danger flags in your cheeks. Tell me, dear, I'm pardonably curious."

She lifted his hand and held it against her cheek as she told him what Winnie Shelton had done. His low, angry exclamation, "My God! the little fool!" did not interrupt the steady flow of her recital.

"So you see, dear, I—I ran away. I couldn't stay there after that. You

Here's Real Relief From Neuritis

In 24 to 48 Hours Pains Are Often Relieved and You Get Rest and Comfort Again.

Torturing pains—the kind that pierce and burn and never seem to let up—that rob a man of his sleep—that make him just a bag of nerves and all worn out.

These are the pains that dope and coal tar products can only partially relieve.

The safest and most efficient way to get rid of the persistent, nerve-racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenburh Special Formula No. 2. Be sure to get No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take these little dark green capsules as directed and in about 24 hours you should be able to notice that they have considerably reduced if not almost banished these severe, torturing pains that have caused you so many sleepless nights. Continue for two or three days more or until you are satisfied with results.

It doesn't matter how long you may have suffered or whether your Neuritis is in the shoulder, arm, neck or legs. Allenburh Special Formula No. 2 should give you speedy relief. Schmitt Bros., Vol's Drug Store or any good druggist will be glad to supply you.

see that, don't you? It would be too horrible to be left alone there with a sticken old man who has had every reason to lose his faith in human nature." She could not bring herself to tell him of that interview between herself and T. Q. Curtis. That should be their secret. No one should know from her that he had planned a supreme folly—that of adopting a daughter from among the three selfish schemers to whom he had played benefactor.

"So you are breaking your word to him—leaving before the year is out," Dal said thoughtfully, frowningly.

"But dear, only a week remains of the year," Billy protested, wily-eyed. "He agreed to let me go. Naturally I did not run away without telling him my reasons for leaving. He has been wonderfully kind. I would not hurt him for the world."

"Your desertion at the time of his greatest need must hurt him," Dal insisted, drawing his hand from hers and clenching his fist.

"Your consideration for Mr. Curtis' feelings rather surprises me," Billy retorted almost angrily. "Especially since you two have never liked each other. Oh, Dal, we mustn't quarrel now," she cried brokenly. "What had happened between them? She asked herself in a panic.

"Of course we mustn't, darling!" he laughed tenderly. "I'm just bewildered. Billy, your news is so startling. Come, darling, look at me! Can't you read in my eyes that I love you—utterly?"

He lifted the veiling lids slowly, gazed into her eyes deeply, so that gradually she grew limp in his arms, the old powerful spell dragging her body and her mind. Then suddenly, fiercely, he bent his head so that his lips met hers.

"Now," he evinced, "you're going to be a sensible little darling and go back to Mr. Curtis until the year is up, when you can leave in honor."

His words shocked her into alertness. "When the year is up—? Why was he so insistent? Did he guess—did he know?"

She drew herself entirely out of the circle of his arms. "I'm not going back, Dal. If—if you don't want me, I'll go home—my real home. I mean—my mother's. She will take me in."

She began to sob, in fright and self-pity.

"Darling, darling," he remonstrated gently. "Don't be a baby. Of course I want you—"

"Then we can be married—tonight!" she melted toward him again.

"Tonight? That's rather short notice, isn't it, darling?" he teased her. "What about a license?"

"Is that all?" Billing grinned at him.

"Nyda and Eddie Banning were married in the middle of the night at Chatham, and I'm sure Eddie didn't already have the marriage license. Why couldn't we follow the same program?"

"Billy, dear, please don't be angry, but I think it would be much more sensible—and beautiful—if we waited until April as we had planned. No, don't fly out at me," he begged, as she sprang to her feet with an angry exclamation. "What I want you to do is to go back to Mr. Curtis until the year is up—"

"Dal Romane, if you say those words one more time I'll never speak to you again!" Billy surprised herself and stammered Dal Romane by snatching her foot at him. "I've humiliated myself enough already by asking you to marry me tonight instead of waiting, but I won't repeat the request! Don't fear!"

"My dear Mignon!" Dal recovered himself with remarkable swiftness and took her clenched hands into his. "I'm sorry! Forgive me, darling! I was just trying to protect you, and to make it beautiful, not a hurried decision. My own affairs are not in the best of shape—"

"Please, we won't discuss it any more!" Billy tried to wrench her hands from his. "I have my bag outside the door. I'm going to mother. I'll get a job at something and—"

"You blessed, darling little infant!" Dal's caressing voice crooned over her as he took her in his arms. "Nothing matters to me but your happiness. Come now, smile pretty for the gentleman! That's better! Excuse me now, dear, while I throw some things into a suitcase. You won't want to come back here after we're married, will you? I'll take along what I'll need for a few days."

He settled her upon the couch, kissed her lightly on the forehead, then got about packing. She watched him as he lifted hangers from the closet and arranged his clothes with meticulous care in the suitcase he had opened upon a chair. Her eyes were shy and very sweet, her mouth tremulous and amused with a tender little smile, as she followed every movement he made.

The bag was half packed when a shrill clamor from the doorknob interrupted his labors.

"I'll answer it!" she told him, springing toward the door. Already she felt as if she had a right in his "dignities," felt like a wife who takes little duties off her husband's shoulders.

That happy feeling was lost in astonishment when she opened the door upon Clara, the pretty parlormaid of the Curtis house. Clara was startled as Billy, but her training as a servant stood her in good stead.

"I have a note for Mr. Romane," she told Billy, peering over the shorter girl's shoulder into the room.

"Thank you, Clara," Billy smiled as she reached for the note.

"I was told to give it to Mr. Romane himself, and to wait for an answer," Clara stated positively, as she pushed past Billy into the room, meeting Dal, who was striding toward her, his face darker than usual with annoyance.

Billy watched him tear open the thick, expensive envelope—stationery which Billy recognized with a sudden, sick sinking of her heart as belonging to Winnie Shelton. He read the three pages of the letter frowningly, then crushing the sheets in his hand, he turned to Clara:

"There is no answer, Clara. Here— and thank you." He drew a dollar bill from his trousers pocket and gave it to the maid, who left after another long, shrewd glance about the room, her eyes lingering upon the half-packed suitcase on the chair.

He tore Winnie's letter into small bits, with vicious twists of his brown fingers. Then, smiling, briefly into Billy's troubled, doubting eyes, he turned away to resume his packing, flinging the remaining garments into the case with little of the meticulous care which had marked the beginning of his packing.

Fifteen minutes later the cream-colored loudster swerved away from the curb before the imposing entrance of the apartment house, carrying a rather grim-faced bridegroom and a trembling little bride-to-be, who looked as if she were of half a mind to leap from the car and run as fast as her legs could carry her to the dear security of her mother's arms.

NEW CAR
Will it be a 5-year comfort
.... or a 5-month cripple?
FROM the day it's broken in—to the day it's broken down, your motor's fate depends on a thin film of oil.
The ability of that oil-film to resist destructive heat and friction largely determines the kind of service your motor gives—the size and frequency of repair bills—the length of your car's life.
If that film of oil breaks and burns under the fierce attacks of heat and friction, vital motor-parts are exposed. Hot, unprotected surfaces chafe against each other. Withering heat attacks raw metal. Insidious friction begins its work of destruction. And you, eventually, pay big repair bills.
In Veedol, Tide Water technologists perfected the oil that masters heat 100 degrees hotter than the hottest friction-spot in your car—the oil that gives the fighting "film of protection," thin as tissue, smooth as silk, tough as steel.
Today, drive to a dealer who displays the orange and black Veedol sign. Have your crankcase drained and refilled with Veedol. It's the best and cheapest insurance on the life of your car.

It seems easier to collect that veteran bonus than to get a match with a wrestling champion without first mortgaging all the gold in one's teeth.

In order to fall before a wrestling champion, a challenger had to have some kind of down payment.

Sammy Mandell, they claim, was handed the lightweight title at Chicago but as we recall it, he left-handed his way to the crown.

A challenger can't afford to win a match until he has saved a few hundred thousand and has a couple of homes to give away.

APPLETON AWARDED K. P. CONVENTION

Local Lodge Wins High Honors at State Meeting in Racine

Appleton was unanimously chosen for the 1928 convention of the Knights of Pythias Grand Domain of Wisconsin at the closing session of the annual convention held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at Racine. Robert Schmidt, official delegate of the local Knights of Pythias lodge to the convention and Mrs. George Schmidt, who represented the Pythian Sisters, returned Wednesday night.

The Appleton lodge was honored at the session on Wednesday by receiving a flag and Bible for making the largest percentage in gain in membership for receiving the largest number of new members during the year. The local lodge had a score of 50 per cent more than any other lodge in the state. The flag and Bible were presented by Richard Witte, supreme chancellor of the supreme domain.

One of the features of the convention was the initiation of a class of 70 new members. About 600 delegates and visitors from all over the state attended the meeting, it was reported.

ELECT OFFICERS

Racine—The grand lodge session of the Knights of Pythias came to a close here Wednesday afternoon, with the election of F. J. Knoell, Milwaukee, as grand chancellor, in place of Col. John G. Eager, Racine, who was presented with a diamond-studded past grand chancellor emblem. All officers were re-elected. John E. Chandler, Sheboygan, was elected supreme grand scribe, and Arthur A. Schumann, Milwaukee, was elected supreme representative in place of Charles A. Still, Beloit.

VALLEY SCOUT COUNCIL BUYS 5 ACRES FOR CAMP

Boy Scouts of the Valley council probably will have a permanent camp site this summer as the result of the purchase of a tract of lake shore property on the shore of Lake Winnebago. The land is located on the north shore of Lake Winnebago about 2½ miles east of Waverly Beach on state road highway. It is a small tract, about 5 acres in size. It is on the farm of Mrs. Anna Larson in the town of Harrison, Calumet-co., and consists of five acres.

The purchase of the land probably will keep Valley Scouts who had intended to attend the Fond du Lac council camp, outside of 20 boys of Troop 9, Menasha, Wisconsin, who already had enrolled at Fond du Lac from July 20 to 27.

WYOCENA MAN HEAD OF WISCONSIN BAPTISTS

World's Most Eligible Bachelor, 33 Today, Unwed Despite People's Pleas And Charms Of Princesses

London—The world's most eligible bachelor is 33 years old today—and still a bachelor.

Edward Arthur Christian George Andrew Patrick David Windsor, more popularly known as the Prince of Wales, is eating his birthday cake today in one of the other of his various palace homes, while his father, the king, and his mother, the queen, sorrowfully reflect that for more than fifteen birthdays they have said, "next year he'll be married, surely!"

It was back in 1911 that the international hullabaloo about finding a bride for Prince "Davy" began. In 1911 he was betrothed by public opinion to the daughter of the Kaiser of Germany, Princess Victoria Louise.

LOTS OF REPORTS

And from that first "engagement" he has been variously reported engaged to every eligible girl of blood royal in the Caucasian world; girls of every religion, girls ranging in age from 10 to 25, beautiful girls and homely girls, studious girls and frivolous girls.

There are enough romantic tales woven about Prince "Davy" to supply all the operas of all time.

One of the most popular has it that his heart is linked to the unknown grave of the Grand Duchess Tatiana Olga, daughter of the Czar of Russia, who was put to death by Bolsheviks. They say that he loved lovely Princess Astrid of Sweden, and was about to make her his when she married Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium.

They say that, returning from his trip to America, he found dark-eyed Yolanda of Italy a guest of his royal father and mother, he was almost ready again to please the world by mating. But she returned home to wed a dashing cavalry officer.

They say that little Princess Ileana of Rumania pleased him, but that the too-evident eagerness of her match-making mama, Marie, to noose him as a son-in-law antagonized him until he told her to take Ileana home and "put her in school where she belonged."

Today the prince is 33. King George grows old and weary of cars of state. Prince "Davy" is the idol of his people. They want him on the throne. But they don't want a bachelor king. But Prince "Davy" only shrugs his shoulders and let them talk. Many of his intimates seem to believe that he has no hankering to be king, and that if he were to become king, he would be a bachelor king. He would be a bachelor king, and he would be a bachelor king, and he would be a bachelor king.

In alarm, the high mongers, seeing that one princess and then another who has been reported engaged to the Prince of Wales, marry another, cry out, "Soon there will be no blooded maidens left!"

But facts are that there are about 1,500 maidens of blood royal in Europe and only about 75 eligible prince.

If the Prince of Wales really wants a wife, and a wife who, according to officialdom, would be altogether fitting and proper, there is no dearth of material.

The latest and most persistent rumor has it that the Infanta Beatrice of Spain. The Spanish court does not deny this rumor nearly so vigorously as the British court.

Beatrice has always been popular with her royal English relatives. She is more English than Spanish in type. She is charming and young, only 18. She is charming and young, only 18. She is charming and young, only 18.

HIGHLY ELIGIBLE

Princess Maria of Sweden and Princess Feodora of Denmark are especially popular. They are the most eligible princesses for the prince, because they are Protestant and present no baffling international problems.

Maria is a sister of Astrid, now Crown Princess of Belgium, and with her sister had been a frequent and welcome visitor at the English court.

Among maidens nearer Prince "Davy's" own vintage is Princess Hilda, sister of the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg. Hilda has six sisters, and 'tis said that the 7 girls vowed to enter a Carmelite convent if unwed by the time they were 25. They are very wealthy, and will not marry Germans.

The Prince of Wales has been reported engaged at various times to all three daughters of the King of Italy. But Mafrida and Giovanna are both wed now, and only Giolanda remains.

Giuliana of Holland, last descendant of the House of Orange, which gave Holland three kings, one queen, seven stadholders, and one English king, is in some ways considered Europe's greatest royal matrimonial catch, as she will have a throne in her own right. But—well, if she weren't a princess she would be said to lack "H." She is 18, stocky, studious, serious, and even the oldest Mole of England hardly vision their dance-floored "Davy" married to Giuliana.

Then there is Princess Irene of Greece, sister of ex-King George II of Greece, and a niece of the former German kaiser. But—well, nobody knows just why!

Pretty Princess Marie Jose of Belgium is just 20, dark and curly haired as are the girls with whom the prince seems to like to dance, musical and athletic. But—again!

INGRID IS POPULAR

There is 17-year-old Princess Ingrid, daughter of the Crown Prince of Sweden by his first wife, and one of Europe's most popular princesses. There are the sisters of Princess Olga of Greece, who, once rumored as Edward Windsor's betrothed, is now wed to another. Her sisters, Elizabeth and Maria, and her cousins, Marianne and Theodora, daughters of Prince Andrew of Greece, now live in England and are well known to the Windsors.

Meanwhile, as England lists the possibilities, Prince "Davy" goes his way, visiting the public halls of Whitehall and Chancery, dancing with factory girls when he wants to, grinning, dancing, laying cornerstones of public buildings, and sticking his fingers in his ears when the matrimonial adding machine gets to going.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Grabfelder and daughter Marcia of Chicago are visiting the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. Grabfelder, 411 N. Onondaga-st.

The Prince of Wales and a few of the princesses who would be glad to help him find England's future queen—if he'd only let them!

LAW STUDENTS MAY DODGE BAR EXAMS

tion and endorse or reject any act of the legislature at the polls. A similar resolution by Assemblyman Reis finally met defeat in the upper house last week, after having been passed by the 1925 legislature and the assembly of the present session.

The present resolution was offered last February, but was held up by the committee on Judiciary, pending action on the Reis resolution. Before the measure becomes a law, it will have to go over the same road traveled by the Reis proposal, involving a period of about six years.

The senate Thursday called an assembly bill proposing a change in the method of electing school board members in Milwaukee-co. The vote was 22 to 6.

A substitute amendment by Senator Polakowski, providing for a referendum on the question, also was killed. The bill would have allowed the election of school board members on the principle by which assemblymen are chosen, one from each district.

The motor vehicle department consolidation bill creating a separate department for the regulation of automobiles, trucks, etc., was killed by the assembly, the lower house voting 50 to 27 not to concur with the senate in it.

Markets

STOCKS FLUCTUATE IN EARLY TRADING

Prices Move Within Narrow Limits and Changes Are Fractional in Character

New York—(AP)—Stock prices again fluctuated within rather narrow limits at the opening of Thursday's market. General Electric opened a point higher, but most of the other initial changes were fractional in character. The decline in steel production last week, coming soon after the establishment of a record-breaking volume of brokers' loans, had a tendency to offset speculative enthusiasm on the long side except in those issues in which special developments are believed to exist. A sharp break in the market was effected by the cut in official salaries, and a further drop of 3 points in steel stocks also had an unsettling effect on the market. Foreign exchanges opened irregular with a decline in London, and French francs around 3.91 1/2.

Baldwin was pushed up to 2.29 1/2, a new high record, in an effort to stem the stream of selling orders for both Baldwin and General Electric. The list elsewhere. The renewal rate for standing loans was again arranged at 4 per cent.

The closing was irregular. Total sales approximated 2,000,000 shares.

LEGIONAIRES GET READY FOR STATE MEET IN AUGUST

Appoint Committee to Consider Advisability of Bathing Beauty Contest

Harvey Priebe, commander of Oney Johnston post of the American Legion, and A. H. Bunkis were officially appointed to represent the post on the Appleton City council at a meeting of the post executive committee Wednesday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Arthur Jones was appointed post employment officer and Ralph Gee was chosen post Citizens Military Training camp officer. Mr. Jones' duties are to assist in finding work for idle service men. Mr. Gee takes charge of the post's part in stimulating employment for the C. M. T. C.

C. B. Pettis, representing the Teddy Building post of Marinette, explained the state legion bathing beauty contest which will be a feature of the 1927 state convention at Marinette. Each post has been asked to hold a local contest and enter the winner in the state convention contest. The winner at Marinette will be crowned Miss Wisconsin and will be given a free trip to Paris with the Wisconsin legionnaires for the Paris convention. She also will be entered in the Atlantic City bathing beauty contest. Other prizes will be awarded to other winners.

A committee consisting of George Dame, H. H. Hebble and L. L. Plummer was appointed to investigate the proposition for the Johnston post and report back to the executive committee.

The post was invited to send a delegation of its members and a color guard to the July 4 parade of the Oshkosh post at that city and arrangements were made to send a color escort for the parade. Roy Hauert, post sergeant at arms, and Charles Spaulding were placed in charge of the escort.

The state convention at Marinette and the state leg-on golf tournament at Milwaukee were discussed. Plans were made for entering an Appleton team in the golf meet, which will be held the first part of next week.

STUDENTS CAN GET CARDS AT HIGH SCHOOL OFFICE

Report cards for Appleton high school students have been made out and students may call for them at the school office. Several have asked for their cards but many remain at the office.

The practice of mailing report cards to students was discontinued this year because of the expense and work involved. Mr. Hebble, principal, announced.

COOL WEATHER HASN'T HURT TOURIST BUSINESS

Hotels are doing a rushing business this summer in spite of the continued cool weather and apparently undesirable camping conditions in the north. Appleton managers reported. Many summer tourists are coming through from the north and from the south. There seem to be many returning to their homes in Chicago and other southern places as are going to the northern woods, they stated.

Whether the returning crowds are largely due to the cold weather and unpleasantness of fishing and other outing trips or because the week or two vacations are over, they did not know. As soon as schools were dismissed the summer tourist trade opened up, and some came before that time, as early as May.

Travelers seem to be coming in as many numbers as ever and hotels are filled nearly every night, largely with tourists.

PONS-WINNECKE COMET VISIBLE HERE TONIGHT

The Pons-Winnecke comet is nearest the earth this week in its travels through space thousands of miles away. If the sky is clear and visibility fairly good it should be seen easily with the naked eye, an observer at an Oshkosh observatory reported.

Although the comet is rather hard to find, the persistent sky gazer will locate it without the aid of a telescope, it was said.

It is now just above the Milky Way and is north and west of the bright star Vega in the constellation Lyra. It is considerably south and east of the north star and is near two other bright stars in the constellation Draco.

WEATHER CONDITIONS
Rains have fallen over the Lake region and southeastern states during the past 24 hours. High pressure now over the plain states and central valleys, with fair weather and with a sharp drop in temperature over Wisconsin and Michigan. This high is expected to cause fair weather tonight yet in this section, though probably with the temperature not quite so low. A low pressure area is crossing the northern Rockies, which is expected to extend its influence to this section by Friday, with increasing cloudiness and rising temperature and probably with showers by Friday night.

Correct Clothing And Food Makes For Summer Comfort

Chicago—(P)—You can keep "both your temper and your health this summer by dressing sensibly and eating properly," said Dr. A. H. Waterman of Chicago in a statement prepared for the Gorgas Memorial Institute.

"Mid-summer comfort," Dr. Waterman declared, "is largely a matter of the right sort of food and the right kind of clothing, and those living north of the Mason and Dixon line can well take a suggestion from our brothers on the other side."

"Notice the men, especially! No tightly woven, heavy, loosely woven clothing which permits the escape of body heat. And notice the colors! Mostly all light—to reflect the heat, not absorb it."

"All this dressing the part of business is important for summer well being. It's really giving nature a chance. Not always have doctors, any more than lay people, understood the full significance or the value of such assistance."

"There was a time, not so many years ago, when even doctors believed there was a mysterious something in high temperature that made the tropics unhealthy for white men. Then in 1897 Dr. Sambon, a famous English physician, publicly stated that in his opinion it was not the heat that killed the white man in the tropics but the parasites that attacked and conquered him. Ten years later Dr. Sambon visited General Gorgas in Panama where, with Gorgas' hygiene, sanitation, and sanitation, the canal was being built. And General Gorgas spread out his records for the famous Englishman and said: "Here is proof you are right."

"The records showed that the terrible death rate, one out of three every year, which had persisted while the French were attempting to dig the canal no longer prevailed. And a few years later Gorgas was able to point to the health record and show that the death rate was lower than it was for the United States. And this in a country of tropical rainfall and tropical heat."

"People who want to be healthy in summer should dress for comfort and common sense. Light-weight, loosely woven clothing, preferably light in color, is best."

"As for diet, omit the heavier meats, fats, and supply of starchy foods commonly eaten in cooler weather. Instead, eat these things sparingly and eat generously of vegetables and fruit. Proper food, proper clothes, exercise and play in the open and adequate sleep will keep the normal person fit the whole summer through. The benefits will help to carry you through the trying winter ahead."

CLASS REUNION OPENS TOMORROW

The tenth anniversary of the graduation of the class of 1917 of Appleton High school will be celebrated Friday and Saturday with a class reunion. More than 40 members of the class, with their wives and families are expected to return for the celebration. Members of the class will register Friday at the Novelty Boat shop in the morning and afternoon until 2 o'clock and at 3 o'clock, they will meet with their wives and children at Appleton High school where cars will be provided to take them to High Cliff for a picnic. A picnic for the children is scheduled for Saturday morning at Pierce park. One of the features of the reunion will be a dinner dance Saturday night in the Crystal room at the Conway. Dinner will be served at 6:30 followed by dancing in the Crystal room and cards in the Gold room.

SENIOR SOCIETY HOLDS PICNIC

Members of Senior Olive Branch League of Mt. Olive Lutheran church entertained at a picnic roast at the home of Eleanor Rother, Monday evening. Games were played.

A boat excursion will be held with the Junior Olive branch of the league August 7 and a joint outing has been planned but no date set for the event. About 18 members attended the picnic roast. The rain prevented a larger attendance, it was stated.

AUTHORIZE FENCE AROUND STREET MACHINE BARN

A 6-foot fine mesh wire fence is to be constructed about the city street department storage grounds on N. Walnut-st. The work was authorized by the streets and bridges committee and it is expected that the fence will enable the men to keep a better check of city tools and materials that are stored outside the buildings. At the north end of the fence a large gate will be constructed so that trucks may drive into the enclosure. The purpose of the fence is to prevent the mysterious disappearance of city tools which has been noted in the past. Construction of the barrier will start next week.

CUT NEW DRAINS TO SAVE STONE BRIDGE

Fear Water Seepage Through Stones Will Weaken Bridge Foundations

Preparations to repair the drainage system in the John-st bridge are being made this week by the street department. At present the bridge is drained by a series of "small outlets" from the bridge surface. These outlets lead down through the solid stone supports and the water pours into the river.

The drains are formed by pipes which lead down in a straight line from the surface of the bridge through solid stone for about 8 or 10 feet where the line turns and leads through the stone wall for about 4 or 5 feet. Some time ago the bridge was old and it is believed that all ran into the drains and formed a barrier at the turn in the line. During the winter water is held at this point and freezes and several were clogged.

Because the drains were clogged the flood water from the bridge sought other means of egress and seeped through the stone foundations. Last winter the water which seeped between the stones in the foundation froze and it is feared this will weaken the foundation. Efforts to open the plugged drains were fruitless and the only remedy is to cut new drains, R. F. Hackworth, street commissioner said.

To do this it will be necessary to tear up the brick pavement and cut through four or five feet of solid stone. The work is to be started next week.

LEGION COUNTY COUNCIL MEETS AT HORTONVILLE

Outagamie County Council of the American Legion will hold its regular June meeting on Thursday evening, June 29, at the Hotel Hoffman, Hortonville, according to A. C. Bosser, secretary. The meeting was to be held at the John Hantschel cottage at Lake Winnebago but this gathering was postponed until the September session.

Installation of the new officers elected at the May meeting and a discussion of plans for the state legion convention at Marinette in the fall, will be the most important business of the session. Officers to be installed are Edward Haas, Kaukauna, chairman; Charles Scheil, Little Chute, vice chairman; D. A. Matheson, New London, treasurer, and A. C. Bosser, Appleton, secretary. Retiring officers are M. H. Kettenhofen, Kimberly, chairman, Henry McDaniels, New London, treasurer, and Mr. Bosser, secretary.

BLUES GUESTS OF REDS AT PICNIC

Members of the Blue side of the Thermometer contest conducted by the Christian Endeavor society of Emanuel Evangelical church will be entertained at a picnic Friday evening at Erb park with the Red side as the hostess group. The Blue side won the contest with 6,155 points, defeating the Reds by 25 points.

The contest started in January and continued until the first meeting in June. Points were given for attendance of members and visitors at the meetings, the number of new members obtained, advertisement, participation in program and special music. Members of the group in charge of the arrangements for the picnic include Alice Koss, Mabel Duvel, Roy Riesenweber, Lucille Sabelbergh, Alma Sievert, Willard Schmidt, Viola Ashman, Harold Finger, Rosetta Selig, Harry Steffen and William Zinke.

Postal employees charter steamer for excursion

About 100 employees of the Appleton postoffice, their families and friends have made plans for attending the boat excursion and picnic at North park in Oshkosh Sunday. The Mayflower, Jr., which is chartered, will accommodate 150 persons.

The boat will leave the government dock at 8 o'clock in the morning and will return at night. Basket lunches will be carried for dinner and supper. A baseball game with the Oshkosh postoffice employees has been arranged for the afternoon, and other entertainment will be planned. An orchestra will play on the trip.

Arthur Kahler is chairman of the entertainment committee and other members of the group are George Grimmer and Edward Phiner.

U. S. SUPREME COURT ALLOWS NO CHANGE IN ANTI-TRUST LAWS

New York Lawyer Addresses
State Bar Meeting on Federal Case

Green Bay.—(P)—Two recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court have "completely closed the door to any possibility of amending the anti-trust laws so as to exempt agreements or combinations," Gilbert H. Montague, New York attorney, declared Wednesday night before the annual meeting of the Wisconsin bar association.

Both decisions were rendered June 6, 1927. He said, one applying in the Cline vs. Frank Dairy case, "putting the quietus on all proposals to amend the Sherman Act and the Clayton Act" and the other in the American Tobacco case. The high court decided in this case, Mr. Montague declared, that it would not interfere with lower court decisions on questions of fact involved in Federal Trade Commission cases.

"This Cline decision," he said, "becomes still more significant in the light of what the Supreme Court decided on May 31, 1927 in the American Tobacco case.

Where the Supreme Court, again by a unanimous decision, held that it would not interfere with lower court decisions on questions of fact involved in Federal Trade Commission cases, even though those questions 'admit of different interpretations', and those lower court decisions are 'not satisfactory as an exposition of the law'.

"Resourceful prosecutors, it must always be remembered, in criminal proceedings, or in triple damage actions under the Sherman Act, or in Federal Trade Commission proceedings, it is usually possible to introduce enough evidence so that the jury, or the court, or the commission always has at least some evidence on which to find. If it is so disposed, that 'agreements and combinations' in violation of the anti-trust laws are 'implied from a course of dealing or other circumstances' of the defendants.

"The consequence, therefore, of all these recent Supreme Court decisions is that price fixing 'agreements and combinations' are outlawed, even though the prices are reasonable, and if the jury, court or Federal Trade Commission finds any evidence tending to show that such price fixing is the result of an 'agreement or combination', this conclusion cannot and will not be overturned by the Supreme Court of the United States."

Atlanta, Ga.—(P)—Having lost two of his national titles Bobby Jones set out Thursday on a trail that leads to St. Andrews, Scotland, and a fight to retain his only laurel of national importance, the British Open title.

The ability of friends to obtain passports will determine whether he sails on the Transylvania Saturday for England. "I won't know whether I'll go or not until I get to New York," Jones said, "and probably not until I step aboard the steamer."

He did not name the friends but it was thought that his father, Robert P. Jones, planned to go.

At the Eastlake Country club players on Bobby's home course were convinced he would fall.

The British titleholder, who lost the United States amateur crown to George Von Elm and only recently finished far down the list in the National Open at Oakmont, has engaged in intensive practice for several days.

BILL SCHOMMER CAUSE OF UPSET IN TOURNAMENT

Oshkosh.—(P)—One big upset occurred in the singles competition for the championship of the state in the third annual Badger state tennis tournament play here Wednesday.

Billy Schommer of Milwaukee, state junior champion, defeated F. G. Hubb of Watertown, third ranking state player, in straight sets, 6-1, 6-4.

In the first set Schommer's service and driving power completely overwhelmed Hubb. Hubb appeared to possess no strokes except the Renshaw drive. In order to complete his drive he must be firmly placed and he was unable to get set under the well placed Schommer drives.

WEST'S PROSPERITY HANGS ON WATERWAY

Eastern Man Tells Badger
Bankers St. Lawrence Seaway Is Needed in Midwest

Madison.—(P)—The greatest problem confronting the midwestern now is the building of the St. Lawrence waterway. Dr. Frank Bohn, of the New York Times told more than 700 Wisconsin bankers Wednesday at the opening session of the Wisconsin bankers association.

"The St. Lawrence project will not only be the greatest hydro electric development of this generation," he said, "but eventually it will bring us over five millions of horse power."

"That development will be one of the three great human tasks in ocean transportation. The first was the Suez. The second was Panama."

Declaring that Norfolk, Va., could lay as many bricks for 40 cents as Milwaukee could for $1, and that a carload of goods from the southern seaboard cities to the Pacific coast costs just half what it costs middle-western cities, Mr. Bohn declared that unless the industrial middle west coupled cheap power with transportation it would lose its place as the greatest economic unit in the world.

"Throw the locomotive onto the scrap heap as a relic of the nineteenth century," he said. "For the coming 25 years, electrical power will be the center of interest. Within 25 years, you bankers are going to arrange one hundred billions of credit to reorganize the American industries on the new basis."

He defined the statement of the future as looking beyond state lines, and he declared that even today, competition in the United States was not between states but between sections of the country with common interests.

MOLLA MALLORY LOSES TO YOUTHFUL NETTER

Wimbledon, Eng.—(P)—Mrs. Molla Mallory, seven times American national women's tennis champion and present holder of the title was defeated Thursday in the Wimbledon singles by Miss Betty Nuthall, English school girl player and junior champion. The score was 2-6, 6-2, 6-0.

Betty Nuthall won the British junior singles championship in 1924, 1925 and again last year. Last year, also, paired with Gwendolyn Sterry, she won the British women's hard court doubles championship. She is 16 years old.

TOMMY THEVENOW OUT FOR YEAR, DOC SAYS

St. Louis.—(P)—Tommy Thevenow, star St. Louis Cardinal shortstop and hero of the 1926 world series, probably will be out of uniform the rest of the season as a result of the fractured ankle he suffered sliding into second base Tuesday. Dr. Robert F. Highland, club surgeon, announced Wednesday.

President Sam Brandon said he did not contemplate any immediate deal to add another infielder to the roster, but would depend on George Tignor, "a very capable substitute," to play short.

MANY STAR GOLFERS IN EASTERN TOURNEY

Walter Hagen who established a record of 132 for the first 36 holes in winning the event last year, is defending his title. Other entrants include Johnny Farrell, Bobby Cruikshank, Leo Diegel, Willie MacFarlane, Bill Mohrhorn, Joe Turnesa and Emmet French.

INDEMNITY BILL IS KILLED IN SENATE

Goodland's Measure to Reimburse Farmers for Cattle Losses Is Defeated

Madison.—(P)—Senator Walter S. Goodland's bill for increased indemnities to owners of cattle slaughtered after reacting to re-tests for bovine tuberculosis, was killed in the assembly Wednesday.

"The bill by Senator Johnson appropriating $14,000 for establishment of a state game farm on land in Douglas, was killed, the assembly voting non-concurrence with the senate, 48 to 30."

The committee on insurance and banking bill, setting up regulations for the employment and working conditions of men working compressed air, was indefinitely postponed.

Assemblyman Laffey's bill reappointing public utilities taxes so as to favor some districts was killed after a long argument. Assemblyman Edwards, by unanimous consent, was allowed to speak from the front of the chamber on the measure.

There was also a long argument on a joint resolution calling upon the state railroad commission to report on the feasibility and possibility of removing the center abutment under the railroad viaduct in state highway 19 in Waterloo. The source of the argument was the point of interference by the legislature in the duties of the commission.

Among the bills ordered engrossed was one by Assemblyman Schutte requiring that all officers and employees of building and loan association who are handling money shall be bonded in a form prescribed by the commissioner of banking.

Low water in the Magdalena River of Columbia has left a number of boats stranded, and government supplies caught in the congestion have suffered a loss of several millions of dollars.

Believe us — GOODYEAR WAS RIGHT!

We know a tire when we see one. And of all the tires we've ever seen, this new Goodyear — with an improved All-Weather Tread specially-designed for balloon tire wear — takes the prize!

You really are not tire-wise — you aren't up-to-date — if you don't know about this new-type All-Weather Tread Goodyear Balloon.

We have it. Come in — and try to make us take back anything Goodyear said, or that we say here. Learn why more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind.
